U. S. Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station Chincoteague, Virginia

BY CAPT. M. P. BAGDANOVICH, USN
Commanding Officer

LONG before the cessation of hostilities in 1945 and the resultant reduction in aviation operating units, naval planners had envisioned the need for an aviation ordnance testing facility directly on the East Coast.

The southern Delmarva Peninsula appeared a advantageous geographically because of its immediate access to sea ranges and its sparse population. This unique location of apparent isolation relatively close to the large naval establishments in Washington, Norfolk, and Philadelphia, as well as almost all eastern research activities and Navy contractors, made the present site of the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station near Chincoteague, Virginia, an ideal one for the purpose of testing aviation ordnance and guided missiles.

Thus in April, 1946, major construction work having been completed, the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station and its supporting activity, the Naval Auxiliary Air Station, were established under the command of Capt. W. V. R. Vieweg, USN, with the responsibility of conducting experiments and tests assigned to it by the naval Bureau of Ordnance. In 1949 Capt. G. K. Fraser, USN, relieved Captain Vieweg and took command of the combined air and test stations. I assumed command in November, 1951, upon the detachment of Captain Fraser.

In addition to the Ordnance Test Station and Auxiliary Air Station, a Fleet Air Detachment, consisting of Air Development Squadron TWO and Utility Squadron FOUR, is based aboard and actively engaged in pilotless aircraft operations, both for utility (target practice) purposes and for fleet development work. The arrival of the first German V-1 "buzz bomb" over Britain demonstrated the feasibility of the guided missile as a weapon of warfare. Observation of this missile from the wrong end gave the required impetus to our guided missile program and very shortly it became apparent that we needed instrumented ranges on which to test our fledgling missiles. When established, the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station became the only government test station primarily assigned the mission to "develop,"

Family Medical Care Under Senate Study

The Nation's top Government authority on problems of maternity and infant care went before a Senate subcommittee this week to urge enactment of legislation to provide maternity and infant care for dependents of enlisted men of the Armed Forces.

Dr. Martha M. Eliot, Chief of the Children's Bureau of the Social Security Administration of the Federal Security Agency, made her plea before the Subcommittee on Health of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

During the next year, said Dr. Eliot, about 200,000 babies will be born to wives of enlisted men and, according to the Armed Forces Medical Policy Council, the Services will be able to provide care for only about 75,000 of these births.

Dr. Eliot added: "Recent testimony before the Congress by the Department of Defense indicates it may not be possible to continue care for dependents at the present level. In that event, the number of births which cannot be taken care of through medical facilities will be greater."

According to a scientifically selected sample survey, 59 per cent of the enlisted personnel do not have hospitalization and medical insurance covering their dependents.

Dr. Eliot said: "When asked to report how he and his wife were planning to meet the cost of maternity care, more than one-third of the men whose wives were pregnant reported that they would have to ask their parents or other relatives, friends, the Red Cross or Army Emergency Relief for help in meeting the cost, or would have to apply for a commercial loan, or said they did not know where they would get the money to pay the doctor and the hospital. Three-fourths of the men said they were worried about not having enough money to take care of the baby after it came."

The Red Cross reports a "striking increase" in the number of requests for help.

The Pay Bill

Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, is watching for an opportunity to bring the Services' cost-of-living pay bill up on the floor.

The Internal Revenue Reorganization bill occupied the Senate's attention much of this week. Senator Russell may be able to get action on the pay bill before the Japanese Treaty is brought up for consideration. Otherwise, he will attempt to bring it up following action on the treaty.

Army Puts Halt to Temp. W. O. Appointments

The Army has ordered a complete suspension of temporary warrant officer appointments.

Certain battlefield appointments in the Far East Command are specifically authorized, but otherwise a freeze on temporary warrant officer appointments is in effect.

At the same time, the Army withdrew from major commanders the authority to make temporary warrant officer appointments. Appointments under future programs will be made only by The Adjutant General, Department of the Army.

Revised personnel authorizations have resulted in an overstrength in many career fields, while shortages exist in others. New programs for appointment are expected to equalize these differences, the Army said.

The only applications which may be currently processed and forwarded to The Adjutant General are in the fields of Radar Maintenance and Repair and Helicopter Pilot. There was no indication that any immediate appointments in these two fields will be made.

The letter of instructions announcing the suspension specifically permitted certain battlefield appointments in the Far East Command.

Must Avoid Inter-Service Rows, Declares General Vandenberg In Message To Major AF Commanders

GENERAL Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF Chief of Staff, has told major commanders of the Air Force that they must avoid "ill-considered or extreme utterances" which might provoke an inter-Service row.

He declared that "anonymous utterances are beneath the dignity of our profession."

The full text of General Vandenberg's message to his major commanders is published herewith.

General Vandenberg's communication was made under date of 12 March. Its dispatch followed a two-hour visit he made on 9 March to the Little White House at the Key West, Fla., Navy Base where President Truman is vacationing.

What General Vandenberg and the President talked about was not revealed.

Air Fighters and Bombers Take Heavy Toll of Reds; Enemy Supply Base Wiped Out

THE war in Korea this week was largely confined to the air, with American Sabre jet fighters taking a heavy toll of enemy aircraft, and Allied fighter bombers playing havoc with an enormous Red advance supply base.

The most important ground action of the week was an attack by a Red battalion on a 2½ mile front of the east central sector, which was repulsed with heavy enemy losses by the U. S. 25th Division and the Turkish Brigade.

On three successive days, enemy MIG-15s were heavily engaged with American jets in spectacular air battles during which the Reds lost 15 planes destroyed, one probably destroyed and 11 damaged. American losses, if any, will not be announced until the weekly summary of Allied air action is issued.

Near Sinmak, 35 miles north of Panmunjom, site of the truce conference, melting snow revealed a well-camouflaged Red supply dump covering four square miles, and apparently containing thousands of tons of ammunition, fuel and other military articles. It was attacked by wave after wave of Allied fighter-bombers, which dropped bombs and napalm, practically wiping out the huge installation.

Elsewhere, Allied land and carrier-based planes attacked rail lines, highway traffic, bridges, supply centers and gun positions. Railway tracks were cut in numerous places, boxcars and locomotives were destroyed, bunkers were blasted, and heavy enemy troop casualties were inflicted.

Ground Action Limited

On the ground, the enemy made a strong attack Wednesday night against positions held by the U. S. 25th Infantry Division and the Turkish Brigade. The attacking force, consisting of a battalion about 750 strong, was driven back with a loss of 200 in killed and wounded. Otherwise action was limited to patrol clashes and light probing attacks by both sides. There was no major change in positions held. Patrol operations continued throughout the week, and several light engagements between small groups were fought, with much of the action occurring on the eastern front.

Naval operations included the usual bombardment and blockade missions, and floating artillery support for ground troops on the extreme eastern front. Fire from the U. S. Heavy Cruiser Manchester inflicted many casualties on enemy troops south of Kosong. Carrier-based Navy and Marine flyers hit Red transportation facilities, and Marine airmen flew close support missions for ground troops.

In the west, Allied land forces staged a small local counter-attack to recover advance positions northeast of Panmunjom previously lost to the Reds. The positions were re-occupied and several of the enemy were reported killed.

A small enemy unit probed United Nations positions north of Chorwon, but action ceased after a brief firefight caused the enemy to withdraw. A United Nations patrol operating east of the Pukhan River surprised and killed a small enemy group with hand grenades. In the same area, a Red platoon engaged an Allied patrol, but retreated after mortar fire was directed on the enemy.

Red Reinforcements

Southwest of Kumsong, a United Nations patrol engaged a small enemy unit, and during the ensuing fight Red reinforcements arrived, pinning down part of the patrol with small arms and automatic weapons fire. However, the patrol was ultimately able to return safely to its base.

Two enemy groups northeast of the Punch Bowl attacked advance United Nations positions, but withdrew after short engagements. An enemy battalion directed long-range small arms fire on forward positions of the U. S. 25th Division and the Turkish Brigade. Later an enemy attack on these positions, strongly supported by artillery and mortar fire, was repelled. United Nations patrols west of the Mundung-ni Valley fought light engagements with small enemy units.

Allied ground troops at the eastern end of the battle line were greatly aided by the accurate 6-inch guns of the U. S. Heavy Cruiser Manchester, which killed at least 75 of the enemy, while firing on 18 front-line Red positions. The Manchester, accompanied by the U. S. Destroyer Owens, began at dawn to shell bunkers, trenches, and mortar positions south of Kosong, inflicting heavy damage and casualties.

Later, the Manchester shifted northward to the Kojo area, 57 miles north of the 38th parallel, to hit Red troops and storage dumps. In the same vicinity the U. S. Destroyer Higbee dispersed Red troops and set a village on fire, during night bombardment and interdiction missions.

Destroyer Strikes

Farther north, the U. S. Destroyer Silverstein destroyed a large tank near Hungnam with two direct hits and two near misses. Other warships of the Allied east coast blockading fleet continued patrol operations, firing effectively at targets of opportunity.

On the west coast, the British Cruiser Belfast and the British Destroyer Cossack fired on bivouac areas and gun positions on an enemy-held island and along the shore. The Cossack also struck at troop concentrations and a Bofors gun position in the Haeju approaches.

Navy flyers from U. S. heavy carriers off the east coast struck heavily at rail traffic and transport facilities. They cut the important east coast rail network in hundreds of places and destroyed railway cars and highway vehicular traffic. Marine flyers from the U. S. Carrier Bairoko, off the west coast, caught rail cars unloading supplies and damaged several with rockets. Other Marine pilots hit vehicles and camouflaged supplies, as well as bunkers and front-line gun positions.

Several days of spectacular action by Far East Air Force planes began on Monday, 10 March, when American Sabre Jets, flying protective cover for fighter-bombers, were engaged by a large formation of Red MIG-15s over Northwest Korea. The F-86 Sabre Jets were escorting F-80 Shooting Stars and F-84 Thunder Jets on a bombing raid on a stretch of railway east of Suncheon when they were intercepted by the Red MIGs.

Air Attacks

The first encounter came when 20 enemy jets attempted to attack an RF-80 escorted by 4 Sabres. In a brief fight the American planes sent 2 enemy aircraft crashing to the ground and damaged 2 others. Another enemy jet was destroyed in the Sinuiju area near the border, when 8 Sabres clashed with 6 MIGs. Still another Red plane was shot down at the Yalu River when 20 Sabres tangled with the remnants of a 20-plane enemy formation streaking for the Manchurian border.

One MIG was destroyed and one damaged in a later battle that day between 18 F-86s and 30 MIGs in the same sector. Eight Sabres attacked 7 enemy jets in the Chongchon River area, destroying 2 Red planes. Two other encounters occurred the same day, but no claims of enemy losses were made.

On the following day one MIG was shot down in a brief fight in the forenoon, and 3 more in the afternoon, with another probably destroyed, and 5 damaged. The afternoon battle occurred during the heavy Allied bombing of a major Red supply base near Sinmak, on the main railway line northwest of Panmunjom.

Hit Supply Base

The huge enemy supply base, covering about 4 square miles, was laid out in the form of a village, with stacked boxes of supplies covered with straw roofs to simulate the appearance of houses of natives. Melting snow revealed the real character of the installation.

The supply center was discovered Tuesday morning, and Allied planes began dropping more than 33,000 gallons of jellied gasoline and many tons of bombs on the area, setting large fires. Communist antiaircraft gunners opened up on the planes, exposing their positions, and revealing the extent of the installation.

Flight after flight of Allied planes rolled in for the kill, destroying 32 gun positions, and setting fires that swept the entire base. Some 250 sorties were flown against this lucrative target, the flights continuing throughout the remainder of the day and most of the night.

In a vain effort to stop the air assault on this major advance base, swarms of Communist MIG-15s flew 160 miles south from their Manchurian bases. They were met by a screen of 26 American F-86s, that sent the Red planes reeling back to Manchuria, after losing 2 aircraft, with a third probably lost, and 4 damaged.

On Wednesday, 12 March, American Sabre Jet pilots shot down 4 more Red jets, bringing the total for three days to 15. In a seven-minute battle on Wednesday morning 20 F-86 Sabres clashed with 17 Red MIGs, enjoying a rare superiority in numbers. The American airmen quickly destroyed 4 enemy planes and damaged 3 others.

Attack Rail Nets

In addition to wiping out the big Red supply base Allied fighter-bombers made particularly heavy attacks on Communist rail transportation networks, making hundreds of cuts in rail lines and practically wiping out a 15-mile stretch of tracks between Suncheon and Songchon, where a half million pounds of high explosives were dropped. American F-80 Shooting Stars and F-84 Thunder Jets led the Suncheon-Songchon attack, and F-80s also hit a marshalling yard at Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, where napalm was dropped on more than a score of cars.

Thunder Jets cratered the rail line between Sukchon and Sunan, destroying several railway cars in the process. F-51 Mustangs cut rail lines on the important Red supply route from Sariwon to Namchonjom and destroyed 20 supply buildings near Yonan.

In close air support strikes Mustangs and Marine fighter-bombers silenced numerous enemy gun positions and inflicted many troop casualties. The low-flying Allied aircraft destroyed many bunkers, blew up an ammunition dump and set fire to a number of buildings sheltering troops and supplies.

American medium bombers, using radar aiming technique, made a night attack on the Sinhungdong rail bridge, dropping 100 tons of high explosives. Meager flak was experienced and no air opposition was encountered. Two other Superforts bombed the Samdong marshalling yards, and another the rail yards at Chinnampo. The B-29s also flew close support missions, dropping air-bursting bombs on enemy front-line positions and supply concentrations just back of the line.

Truck Convoys

Night-flying B-26 light bombers and Marine planes attacked Red vehicular traffic along main highways and secondary roads, destroying many enemy trucks. They also dropped napalm and machine gunned the enemy supply complex west of Yangdok.

The Far East Air Force in a summary of last week's operations announced that during the week ending 7 March 5,700 sorties were flown. Rail lines were severed in 630 places; 21 locomotives and 180 rail cars were destroyed or damaged; 5 tunnels were sealed; and 20 rail and highway bridges were hit. In night attacks 535 Red vehicles were destroyed. Close support strikes inflicted 285 enemy casualties, silenced 115 gun positions, destroyed or damaged 10 tanks, and set fire to 15 supply warehouses and 380 other enemy-occupied buildings.

During the week American F-86 Sabre Jets destroyed 8 enemy MIGs, probably destroyed another, and damaged 8. Three Allied F-84 Thunder Jets and 2 F-51 Mustangs were lost to undetermined causes, and one Marine plane developed mechanical trouble and crashed behind enemy lines. Some of the pilots were rescued.

MIG Losses

Total enemy MIG-15 losses since the start of the war are 235 destroyed, 55 probably destroyed, and 405 damaged. Enemy losses of all types of planes, including MIGs, are 380 destroyed, 104 probably destroyed and 406 damaged. Combat losses of Far East Air Force planes, including attached Marine and foreign aircraft, total 545. Air Force jets' losses include 43 in air combat, 156 to enemy ground fire, and 12 to other causes, for a total of 211. Losses of Air Force propeller-driven planes include 15 in air combat, 246 to ground fire and 24 to other causes.

The Defense Department this week announced that American battle casualties in the Korean conflict, covering all notifications to next of kin through 7 March 1952, totaled 106,458, an increase of 160 over last week's report. These include 18,505 killed in action or died of wounds; 77,257 wounded in action, including 1,735 who subsequently died; and 12,626 missing in action, including 195 known to have died, 1,386 returned to military control, and 1,054 captured, leaving 9,991 currently missing.

Of the total casualties 87,096 were sustained by the Army, 1,247 by the Navy, 17,029 by the Marine Corps, and 1,086 by the Air Force.

The Department also announced that non-battle casualties, including all sick and injured, irrespective of the seriousness of the cases, of American forces in Korea and Japan from 1 July 1950 to 31 Dec. 1951 amounted to 401,628, of whom 378,914, or 94.3 per cent, returned to duty, a rate that compares favorably with rates of American troops stationed elsewhere.

Light Training Planes

Air Force experiments will begin in May to determine the extent to which light commercial type planes can be used in qualifying its pilot selectees for primary training.

Light plane flying the pre-flight training phase would supplement present pilot selection tests and disclose disqualifying defects such as fear of flying and air sickness, Air Force officers believe. Such screening would eliminate many potential failures before they enter the more expensive primary training phase in heavier trainers such as the T-6.

To make an accurate comparison between the experimental and the present method, 120 student pilots will be given flight instruction in light planes prior to their entry into primary training where the T-6 is used. A control group of 120 students taking the present training, beginning with the T-6, will enable the researchers to appraise the performance of the two groups.

Detailed records of progress at various stages of training will be maintained on each group of students from the time they report for pre-flight until they complete primary training.

Under the plan, four classes of 60 pilot trainees, chosen for similarities in background, will report for training at five-week intervals. Thirty students from each class will receive the light plane screening before flying the T-6 and the other thirty will take the present course. All men in each class will complete pre-flight and primary pilot training at the same time and at the same base.

Final recommendations resulting from the project will not be made until after the last class of students has completed primary training.

The report on the tests will include a comparison of student ability at specified stages during the light plane flying program. Also compared will be the flying proficiency of those in the light plane group and in the control group.

The project will be carried out by the Air Training Command's Pilot Training Research Laboratory at Goodfellow Air Force Base, San Angelo, Texas, where the training will be conducted.

The flying instruction will be given by a civilian contractor under Air Force supervision.

Pacific Transfer

The Defense Department announced late this week that the President has approved the recommendation of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that U. S. military responsibility in the Philippine-Formosa area be transferred from the Commander-in-Chief of the Far East, General Matthew B. Ridgway, USA, to the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN.

This transfer will become effective today, 15 March, and involves no change in U. S. policy in the Far East.

Gen. Church Leaves Infantry Center

Maj. Gen. John H. Church, USA, The Infantry Center commander and a combat veteran of three wars, was scheduled to depart Ft. Benning, Ga., about 15 March for extended treatment at the Army and Navy Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark. General Church will be treated for arthritis at the Hot Springs hospital.

It is improbable that General Church will return to Ft. Benning, since he is scheduled to retire from the Army in June.

Until a new commander of Ft. Benning is appointed, Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, jr., USA, present assistant commandant of The Infantry School, will assume temporary command of the post.

When General Church departs from Ft. Benning he will leave 35 years of active military service behind him.

His most recent combat service was as commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Korea. He assumed command of that division when Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, USA, was captured by the North Korean communists. He then was returned from Korea by the Department of the Army in early 1951 to assume command of the Infantry Center.

Twice Wounded

The general began his combat service with the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe in the latter part of December, 1917. He served with the 28th Infantry of the 1st Infantry Division until the end of World War I, participating in all major engagements. He was twice wounded.

During World War II, from September, 1940, to October, 1944, General Church served with the 45th Infantry Division as G-3, chief of staff, regimental commander and assistant division commander, participating in the assault landings at Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and Southern France.

He was promoted to brigadier general 1 Aug. 1944, and joined the 84th Infantry Division upon its arrival in Europe in October 1944. Throughout the remainder of the war he served with that division in Holland and Germany. During this period he was wounded for the third time.

General Church was sent to the Far East Command in September 1949. He served as a section chief in General Headquarters in Tokyo until the Korean war broke out in June 1950. He was sent to Korea on 26 June 1950 to establish an advance section of GHQ. A short time later he took over command of the 24th Infantry Division.

19th Infantry C.O.

In August 1949 General Meloy went to Japan to command the 19th Infantry Regiment, a unit of the 24th Division. He went with this regiment to Korea and commanded it in combat until he was wounded. From July to November 1950 he was hospitalized because of battle wounds.

After his release from the hospital he was appointed deputy to the assistant to the chief of staff for personnel for the Far East Command in Tokyo. General Meloy returned to the U. S. in February 1951 to become chief of the Civil Relations Branch in the Office of the Chief of Information, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.

He was assigned to Ft. Benning as assistant commandant of The Infantry School 23 Oct. 1951.

Second Army Comptroller

Col. Willard S. Renshaw has assumed duties as Comptroller for Second Army Headquarters, Ft. Meade, Md., succeeding Col. Wallace H. Barnes, Deputy Comptroller since February 1949. Colonel Barnes, who is attending the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, expects to complete his studies under the Advanced Management Program about the last of May.

A reunion of all Retreads, veterans of both World Wars I and II, will be held in Boston, Mass., 1 to 3 Aug. Chairman is Ross H. Currier, 108 Mass. Ave., Boston 15, Mass.

USMA Sesquicentennial

The U. S. Military Academy will celebrate its 150th anniversary tomorrow (16 March), with a formal luncheon at 12:30 in the Cadet Dining Hall. The site is appropriately named Washington Hall since George Washington was one of the first to propose that a military academy be established on this spot.

Founders' Day, as 16 March is called, is celebrated annually by gathering of graduates around the world. This year more than 100 celebrations are scheduled in the various sections of the United States and in all corners of the world from Europe to Korea and from Alaska to South America.

The celebration at West Point will feature a major address by General J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff, USA. Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger, Commanding General, First U. S. Army, will be Master of Ceremonies. General Hoyt D. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, will speak briefly and will present to the Academy on behalf of the Air Force a commemorative plaque in honor of the 150th anniversary and of the contributions of graduates of the Academy to the development of the Air Force.

The celebrated Cadet Glee Club will participate in the program, singing "The Corps," "Army Blue," and the "Alma Mater." Major General Frederick A. Irving, Academy Superintendent, will welcome to the luncheon the many graduates from the New York area who plan to attend. Also included in the audience will be the members of the cadet first class (seniors) and officers of the academy staff.

Recorded messages have been received from outstanding alumni and will be played at the luncheon. Included are messages from General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower in Paris, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley in Washington, General Matthew Ridgway in Korea, and the oldest living graduate of the Academy, General Frederick S. Foltz, Class of 1879. General Foltz, a resident of Washington, D. C., is 95 years of age. Messages also are expected from President Truman and Secretary of the Army Frank Pace.

Other ceremonies planned at West Point on Sunday include special Chapel services in the Catholic Chapel and the Cadet Chapel and the unveiling of a bronze wreath in honor of Colonel Sylvanus Thayer, Father of the Military Academy.

Other Sesquicentennial events throughout the year include a lecture series featuring Henry M. Wriston, President of Brown University; Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor; Philip D. Reed, Chairman of the Board, General Electric Company; General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, and General Alfred M. Gruenther, Chief of Staff, SHAPE.

A Jubilee Convocation will be held at the Military Academy on Tuesday, 20 May. This will be the first occasion on which an academic procession and convocation have been held at West Point.

TASK GROUP FIREPOWER

An average fast carrier task group of World War II had over 1600 guns for use in its defense and was capable of firing 6000 bullets per second.

Limit for Air Parcel Post

Because of lack of space in military and civil aircraft for the heavy volume of air parcel post for military and civilian personnel overseas, the Department of Defense has asked the Post Office Department to limit the size and weights of such packages.

Effective 15 March 1952, limitations will be placed on the size and weight of air parcel post mailed to military and civilian personnel served through military post offices overseas and on naval vessels. The new limitations apply only to air parcel post and do not affect parcel post packages sent by surface transport.

Recently, in a number of cases lack of air transport space has caused backlogs of air parcel post, it was pointed out. Space available in military aircraft must be carefully apportioned, it was stated, to assure prompt delivery of high priority supplies, such as combat and medical items, essential personnel movements, and air letter mail.

The new limitations are 30 inches in length and girth combined and two pounds in weight.

They apply to non-official air parcel post addressed to Army and Air Force Post Offices in care of the postmasters at New York, San Francisco, Seattle, and New Orleans. They also apply to non-official air parcel post addressed to Navy and Marine Corps units, in care of the Fleet Post Offices at New York and San Francisco and to Navy numbers in care of the Postmaster, Seattle, Wash.

The dispatch of air letter mail to overseas personnel will not be affected by the new limitations. The action does not change the size and weight of ordinary parcel post packages sent by surface transport. Surface shipped parcel post packages not exceeding 100 inches in length and girth combined, and weighing not over 70 pounds, will continue to be accepted.

The Post Office Department notice to postmasters will also specify that this order does not affect the acceptance of air parcel post coming to this country by airplane from military post offices overseas and on board naval vessels, destined to the United States or its territories and possessions.

Hurricane Hunter Squadron

A new weather reconnaissance squadron, VJ-2, will be commissioned at Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla., this month.

Specifically organized for hurricane hunting, the squadron will replace Patrol Squadron 23, now based at Miami. VP-23 will move from Miami to Naval Air Station, Brunswick, Me., about the first of May.

The new squadron's primary purpose will be to detect and track hurricanes throughout the Caribbean, South Atlantic and Gulf areas, providing all of the weather services now being performed by VP-23. It will work with Miami Weather Central, notifying that weather center of hurricanes and other weather phenomena which might endanger cities, farms and military installations along the Florida and Gulf coasts.

Patrol Squadron 23 will be based in Maine to perform exclusively its mission as an anti-submarine patrol squadron.

Helicopter Seen As Solving Future Landing Problems

Assault by helicopter borne troops as a solution to the problem of amphibious operations against atomic bombs was discussed this week by Lt. Col. George W. Herring, USMC, Commanding Officer Helicopter Training Squadron One, Quantico, Va.

Colonel Herring spoke in Washington, D. C., 12 March at a luncheon given jointly by the Aviation Writers Association and the American Helicopter Society.

Because of the dispersion necessitated by the threat of the atomic bomb, Colonel Herring said, landing ships must be widely separated and assault forces will not be permitted to concentrate on one stretch of beach. Instead, he said, they will land by helicopters launched from vessels far at sea.

Speed, Mobility, Dispersion

The helicopter, he pointed out, will provide speed, mobility, and dispersion. They will go by different routes and will have the necessary flexibility to land far inland or on the flanks of the enemy instead of direct frontal attacks. Moreover, they will not be concerned with underwater obstacles or mines. Their approach, he said, will take advantage of features of the terrain and will be protected by fighter and attack airplanes. Furthermore, he pointed out, unlike glider or parachute troops, the helicopter can afford resupply of men and equipment or can take the men out, if necessary.

Colonel Herring also described the many and varied uses of the helicopter in Korea. He returned in December after having been commanding officer of Helicopter Transport Squadron 191, which performed many combat missions in Korea, including the transporting of an entire battalion of Marines into the front lines.

Introduced by Gen. Jerome

Colonel Herring was introduced by Brig. Gen. Clayton C. Jerome, director of Marine Corps Aviation and Assistant to the Commandant for Air, who will leave next month to become commander of Marine Air Wing One in Korea.

Seated at the head table with General Jerome and Colonel Herring were Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN-Ret., president of the Aircraft Industries Association; Brig. Gen. John C. McQueen, Director of Information, U. S. Marine Corps; Capt. Frank A. Erickson, Special Assistant to the Chief of the Aviation Division U. S. Coast Guard; Mr. Harvey Gaylord, Chairman of the Helicopter Council, Aircraft Industries Association and Vice President of the Bell Aircraft Corp.; Mr. Tom Wilson, vice president of the American Helicopter Society; Mr. James J. Haggerty, jr., National President of the Aviation Writers Association; and Mr. LeRoy Whitman, Deputy Area Governor of the Aviation Writers Association, who presided.

General Brice Named

The Marine Corps this week announced that Maj. Gen. William O. Brice, former Deputy Commander, Fleet Marine Force Pacific, will become Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps for Air and Director of the Division of Aviation.

General Brice will succeed Brig. Gen. Clayton C. Jerome who was named earlier to take command of the First Marine Air Wing in Korea.

Although rumors have placed General Brice in the top Marine aviation billet since early this year (JOURNAL 5 Jan.), it was not until this month that he was ordered to return to the United States. On 7 March, he was detached from FMF-Pac to report to Marine Corps Headquarters.

The 53-year-old aviator who is completing 32 years' service with the Marine Corps, will not take over his new assignment until next month. He has previously served in the Division of Aviation as Deputy Director under the former Assistant Commandant, Maj. Gen. William J. Wallace.

Army Alaska Commander

Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, USA, formerly Director of the Joint Airborne Troop Board at Ft. Bragg, N. C., one of the Army's top experts on airborne tactics and strategy, has been assigned as Commanding General, U. S. Army, Alaska.

Maj. Gen. Miley

General Miley succeeds Maj. Gen. Julian W. Cunningham, USA, who has held the post since May 1950 and who is returning to the United States for hospitalization.

At Ft. Bragg, General Miley will be replaced by Brig. Gen. William N. Gilmore, Army member of the Joint Tactical Air Support Board, also at Ft. Bragg.

The changes will be made during the latter part of April.

Guided Missile Expert to D.C.

Troops of the 1st Guided Missile Group at Ft. Bliss, Tex., staged a farewell review and open house 5 March in honor of their departing commanding officer, Col. Ovid T. Forman, who is leaving for a new assignment in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, in Washington, D. C.

Colonel Forman, who has been associated with the Guided Missile organization since September 1949, will continue in Guided Missile work in his new assignment.

Coming from occupation duty in Germany, Colonel Forman was assigned to Ft. Bliss in September 1947 as Director of the Antiaircraft Service Test Section of Army Field Forces Board No. 4.

In September 1949 he took over the command of the 1st Guided Missile Regiment, and retained command of the organization when it was enlarged to the 1st Guided Missile Group in April 1950.

Ft. Benning Signal Officer

Lt. Col. Chester L. Martin has been named Infantry Center signal officer at Ft. Benning, Ga., replacing Lt. Col. Gordon D. Gray who has left for an overseas assignment. Colonel Martin recently returned to the U. S. from Korea, where he commanded the Fourth Signal Battalion in X Corps.

NEW YORK 1Army War College Status

The Army has issued Circular No. 16 describing the "position of the Army War College in the Military Educational System." The circular is designed to correct "an impression prevalent among many Army officers that, even though having graduated from the Army War College, they must attend the National War College or the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in order to gain maximum recognition in the Army."

"This impression," states the circular, "is contrary to the approved position of the Army College as the senior institution in the Army's educational system."

The circular continues:

"The 'Modification of the Department of the Army Board on Educational System for Officers,' 11 October 1949, sets forth the position of the Army War College as follows:

"The Army War College stands as the apex of the Army educational system for officers; attendance thereat will represent completion of the formal education requirement for the assumption of high level positions with the Department of Defense, and those with other governmental agencies which the Army might be called upon to fill.

"A few officers of the Army will be selected annually for attendance at the National War College and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces to study national and joint strategy and war planning, and industrial mobilization. This specialized knowledge is required in the Department of the Army, but attendance at either one of the two institutions ipso facto will not be given more weight than attendance at the Army War College when selecting officers for promotion or high level positions."

"The National War College and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces prepare Army officers for duties within and without the Department of the Army. The limited capacity of the National War College and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces precludes the annual attendance of substantial numbers of Army officers at those institutions. Because of this limitation the Army War College was reestablished to meet the annual requirement for the training of Army officers for command and staff duties primarily within the Department of the Army. The scope of instruction in the field of national and joint strategy and war planning is somewhat broader at the National War College and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces than at the Army War College, but all provide the requisite instruction desirable for high command. So far as the Department of the Army is concerned, graduates of the National War College, the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, and the Army War College will receive equal consideration for high command and staff positions."

Admiral Hill to Retire

Vice Adm. Harry W. Hill, as previously reported in THE JOURNAL on 19 Jan., will retire as Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy on 1 May.

Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball has announced, however, that Admiral Hill will remain in the assignment for an additional five weeks in order to direct the activities of the Academy during "June Week."

Although no successor has been named, it has been unofficially reported that Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet, will be the new Superintendent. Admiral Radford's three-year tour as CinCPac will terminate on 30 April.

Admiral Hill, who will reach the statutory age limit on 7 April, is completing 45 years of continuous active naval service. His retention on active duty for the additional period was decided upon, the Navy said, "in view of the inadvisability of changing command in the particularly busy period before June Week and the beginning of the Academy's intensive and varied summer training program." Tentative dates for June Week this year are 31 May to 6 June, with graduation exercises for the Class of 1952 on the morning of 6 June. The summer training program starts the following week.

Born in Oakland, Calif., on 7 April 1890, Admiral Hill entered the Naval Academy three months after his 17th birthday. At Annapolis, he was an outstanding athlete, playing on the first varsity basketball and lacrosse teams to be organized there. In his last year (1911) he was Captain of the lacrosse team.

The first eight years of his Naval career were spent on battleships and destroyers in both the Atlantic and Pacific, and during World War I he served aboard the battleships Texas and Wyoming, witnessing the surrender of the German Fleet in November 1918.

In the early part of World War II, Admiral Hill commanded the heavy cruiser Wichita, later shifting his flag to the battleship Maryland as Commander, Battleship Division Four. From November 1942 until September 1943, he served in the South Pacific as Commander of the first task force to comprise battleships and escort carriers.

Appointed Commander of Amphibious Group Two in September 1943, he was assigned the capture of Tarawa. At the conclusion of the Tarawa campaign, his name was linked continually with the outstanding amphibious men in the bitter fighting through the Gilberts, Marshalls, Marianas and Iwo Jima. In April 1945, he became Commander, Fifth Amphibious Force, at Okinawa and continued the amphibious and support operations until the island was secured.

After V-J Day, he commanded the force which landed the Sixth Army in Japan. Since the war's end, he has served as Commandant, Army-Navy Staff College, Washington, D. C. (now the National War College), Chairman of the General Board, and Superintendent of the Naval Academy with additional duty as Commandant of the Severn River Naval Command.

Admiral Hill's decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal with two Gold Stars, the British Distinguished Service Order, and the Order of the Bath, and the Russian Order of Kutuzov.

The Admiral and Mrs. Hill maintain a residence at 2900 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C.

VR-22 to Test R4D-8

Air Transport Squadron Twenty-two, Norfolk, Va., has been directed by the Wing Commander to conduct a series of tests to establish the maximum operating weight of the R4D-8 in its future use by the Fleet Logistic Air Wing. The move follows the recent assignment to the Wing of the first of a number of the twin-engine "Super DC-3's."

According to the Pilot's Handbook for the aircraft, the design gross weight is established at 31,000 pounds. The R4D-8 has been certified by the Civil Aeronautics Authority at this figure as a result of actual tests. However, the Bureau of Aeronautics Technical Order 7-52, by calculation, established the maximum recommended gross weight at 36,800 pounds for both take-off and landing.

The tests to be conducted by VR-22 will be flown at varying weights between the two figures. From the results of the tests it will be determined whether the calculated BuAer figures are correct and to what extent the design gross weight can be increased for Wing operation of the R4D-8.

Marines who are appointed under the new authority must be qualified for the MOS which is appropriate to the next higher grade. Personnel in service schools possessing basic MOS may be promoted if in the opinion of the commanding officer they will be qualified for appropriate MOS upon graduation.

The date of rank for all of the appointments is to be 1 March 1952. All promotions are temporary and appointments must be effected by 15 April 1952, except that commanding officers are authorized to effect promotions of qualified personnel who were in transit or whose service record book was not available during the effective period of the new authority.

10,000 Marines to Hawaii

An advance party of 300 Marines, commanded by Col. Ernest Reid West, have arrived in Pearl Harbor to begin the reactivation of the new Marine Corps Air Station at Kaneohe, near Honolulu.

As first revealed in THE JOURNAL on 15 Dec., last year, the Marine Corps will eventually station both an Air Group and a Regimental Combat Team at the Kaneohe base. A Marine source said the full air combat group will number 2,000, and the regimental combat team will consist of a brigade of 8,000 Marines.

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Marine Commandant, said the ground forces will be shifted from the Third Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, Calif., to the new Hawaiian base. Construction of facilities for the combat team at Kaneohe was authorized by the first session of the 82d Congress at an estimated cost of $18,271,940.

HQMC Shifts Authority For Officers Orders

In a new major policy shift, the Marine Corps has directed field commands to take on the responsibility for a large share of paper work involved in ordering officers to new assignments.

Under the old policy, Marine Corps Headquarters selected officers to fill new billets, published special orders assigning them to their new stations, and provided subordinate commands with copies of these orders to be delivered to the individual officers. This practice also was followed in advising officers of lesser changes in their status.

The old practice was ordered discontinued by direction of General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Marine Commandant, and fifteen subordinate commands have been authorized to publish their own special orders.

Under the new system, Headquarters will continue to select personnel to fill new assignments, and will publish special orders directing their transfer. However, only two copies of the order will be prepared. These will be mailed to the subordinate command where an "extract" will be published in that unit's own special orders directives.

Commanders who have been given authority to republish in their special orders directives for personnel attached to organizations under their command are:

Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Noble, CG, Department of the Pacific.

Lt. Gen. Franklin A. Hart, CG, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

Lt. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, CG, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic.

Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Megee, CG, Air, FMF, Pacific.

Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Cushman, CG, Air, FMF, Atlantic.

Maj. Gen. John T. Seiden, CG, 1st Marine Division.

Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Pollock, CG, 2d Marine Division.

Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, CG, Marine Corps Schools.

Maj. Gen. Merwin H. Silverthorn, CG, MCR Depot, Farris Island, S. C.

Maj. Gen. Ray A. Robinson, CG, Marine Base, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Maj. Gen. O. P. Smith, CG, Marine Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Maj. Gen. Christian F. Schilt, CG, 1st Marine Air Wing.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Pepper, CG, 3d Marine Division.

Brig. Gen. Verne J. McCaul, Commander, Marine Air Reserve Training.

The general officers who head these major commands have also been authorized to "grant, in writing, to such subordinate commands as they may deem appropriate, the authority to republish pertinent portions of their respective special orders."

Pointing out that original written travel orders are required for reimbursement for official travel due to a permanent change of station and temporary additional duty directives, Headquarters has directed that a copy of the special order furnished to each officer shall be marked "original" for this purpose.

Marine Draft to End

The Marine Corps plans to discontinue use of the draft this summer as it reaches its peak strength (235,320) for the fiscal year.

During the next 12 months, the Corps will be increased by only 8,410, and it is anticipated that this number, plus such losses as the Corps will suffer, can be met through volunteers.

In the less than eight months during which the Corps has used the draft, it has taken in about 65,000 inductees. An additional 12,600 will enter the Corps from Selective Service ranks during March and April.

Marine Board Due

A Marine Corps selection board which convened last month to select approximately 381 Reserve majors for promotion to lieutenant colonel is still meeting at Marine Corps Headquarters.

Brig. Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, president of the board, told THE JOURNAL this week that the selections will not be completed before 22 March, and possibly not before the 26th.

Desire More Applicants For Marine Commissions

The second Marine Corps selection board to pick enlisted men for appointment as second lieutenants will meet next week, 17 March, to name approximately 527 men.

At the same time, Headquarters announced that the field of applicants has been expanded. Originally, only NCO's who were recommended by their commanding officer could be considered. Under new instructions, any enlisted man who has served at least 30 days in his organization may submit an application if he believes himself to be qualified. The initial request which went out to commanding officers asking for recommendations has proved disappointing, Headquarters indicated. "Such recommendations have not been forthcoming in sufficient quantity to meet Marine Corps needs," the Corps said.

Applications are now being accepted from all interested enlisted men on active duty, except those in basic training, who meet the requirements set forth in Marine Corps Memorandum Number 23-52.

Commanding officers have been cautioned to bear in mind "that this officer procurement program is designed for young enlisted personnel with outstanding ability." Headquarters points out that "Military training and experience are not essential, but great emphasis must be placed on traits of leadership, initiative, maturity, intelligence and physical stamina."

To receive early consideration, applications of personnel who are now eligible should be in the hands of commanding officers by 15 April. A program for consideration of Marines now in basic training will be the subject of an additional directive from Headquarters.

Interest On Deposits

By decision (B-107269), the Comptroller General has ruled that interest is not payable on savings deposits for the period between the death of an enlisted man and the date of payment of the deposits.

The official digest of the decision (B-107269) follows:

"Interest on enlisted men's savings deposits cannot be allowed beyond the date of separation from the service, notwithstanding the time which may intervene between the date of separation and the date of final payment, and therefore, the beneficiary of a deceased Marine is not entitled to interest on his savings deposits for the period between the date of his death and the date of payment."

The decision was made in the case of the widow of Matthew J. Biedka, late technical sergeant, U. S. Marine Corps, whose death occurred on 27 Oct., 1950.

General Thomas Sworn In

Lt. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps, was sworn into his new office this week, following Senate confirmation of his three-star appointment.

The ceremony was held in the Commandant's office on 12 March, with General Lemuel C. Shepherd administering the oath of office.

Airmen Promotion Change

The Air Force is publishing a change to AFL 39-7, 2 July 1951, concerning temporary promotion of airmen.

The change provides for alignment of grades within each career field with manning document requirements. Further, provision is made for promotions of airmen undergoing lengthy technical training who meet time-in-grade requirements.

The new policy provides also for promotion of airmen assigned to duties not included within career fields.

Periodic promotion quotas will be established, instead of monthly quotas.

Specific approval of USAF Headquarters will be necessary to promote airmen in career fields where there are surpluses.

A common date of rank system also will be established.

Col. Britton Assigned

Col. Frederick O. Britton, USAF, has been assigned as Director of Personnel at the Headquarters of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service in New York City. It is announced by Brig. Gen. Edward H. White, Chief, Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

Colonel Britton was a member of the original committee of prominent civilian businessmen appointed by General Geo. C. Marshall in 1941 to study exchange operations and recommend changes with a view to meeting the needs of the expanding military services. The recommendations of that committee were the basis of the system under which post exchanges operated in World War II as well as of the evolution of the system under which they are operated today.

In 1942, as Deputy Director in charge of Personnel and Training of the Exchange Service, Colonel Britton established the first exchange officer training school at Ft. George G. Meade, Md. He later became commandant of that school.

Preventive Medicine Billet

Col. Max Boyd McQueen, USAF (MC) has assumed new duties as Chief of the Preventable Diseases Branch for the Preventive Medicine Division, Office of the Air Force Surgeon General. Announcement was made by Brig. Gen. Earl Maxwell, Director Professional Services.

Colonel McQueen was engaged in public health work prior to his entering the service in 1940. In 1947, he returned to a position with the Idaho State Department of Health as a district officer in north Idaho. As health officer his duties were to initiate control measures against preventable diseases and injuries, investigate prevalence of diseases, and carry out epidemiological studies. His new position in the USAF Medical Service will include similar duties.

AIR INDUSTRY GROWS

Next January, the aircraft industry will be the nation's second-largest user of manufacturing manpower, with the possibility it will be first. It was 11th only twenty months ago.

AMC Decentralization

Plans have been formed to transfer some functions of Air Materiel Command Headquarters from Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, to field installations, Lt. Gen. Edwin W. Rawlings, USAF, commanding general, has announced.

The transition will be accomplished in an orderly fashion to prevent disruption of normal business routine. Target dates for accomplishing the decentralization have been set from 1 Apr. to 1 Oct.

The decentralization move, General Rawlings said, was dictated by crowded conditions at Wright-Patterson AFB, the huge volume of work flowing into the headquarters and the necessity for effecting greater efficiency which decentralization would make possible.

General Rawlings emphasized that AMC Headquarters would retain its top management function and be the central source of the purchase and production control over major items such as aircraft, engines, propellers, initial spares and government furnished aircraft equipment.

Functions transferred generally will be those that start the preliminary action on certain types of work. Listed were some computation of requirements for program procurement, preparation of source data for budget estimates, initiation of some purchase documents, execution of contracts for those items on which field installations compute requirements, and control of distribution and redistribution of some items in their assigned property classes except for those items now controlled by Headquarters USAF. These will become functions of the Air Materiel Area depots.

The procurement field offices, under the new set-up, will issue amended shipping instructions on orders of the prime depots, and approve plant security clearances.

Air Procurement Deputy

Maj. Gen. William M. Morgan, USAF, has announced the appointment of Col. Bradley J. Saunders, Jr., USAF, as Deputy of Operations for the Western Air Procurement District at Los Angeles, Calif.

Since April 1950 Colonel Saunders has been Air Force Plant Representative at Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. To succeed Colonel Saunders in this assignment, General Morgan named Lt. Col. Charles E. Moore, USAF, who has been assistant at Lockheed since May 1951.

Colonel Saunders, who has served as Air Force Plant Representative at Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. at San Diego, Northrop Aircraft, Hawthorne and at the Willow Run Michigan bomber plant, has been a flier since World War I days when he commanded the first squadron using American-built planes in European action. His home is at 315 West 19th Street, Santa Monica. His son, Capt. Bradley Saunders, Jr., USAF, was a Liberator pilot with the Eighth Air Force in World War II and is now stationed at Randolph AFB, Tex.

Study Air Program

Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) announced this week that the Senate Preparedness Investigating Committee is launching an intensive investigation to determine the effects upon America's airpower position of the recent decision to postpone from 1954 to 1955 the target date for full Air Force readiness.

Senator Johnson said that Committee investigators will start immediately to make a thorough check on facts available from military officials, and the aircraft industry. He said tentative plans had been made to start formal hearings on 31 March.

Some hearings will be open to the public and others will be closed, depending upon security considerations. But Senator Johnson said that the Committee will make a public report "on every fact that can be revealed without endangering our national security."

"On 29 November 1951, the Preparedness Committee reported that aircraft production was substantially behind the schedules necessary for the minimum level of strength considered safe by our strategic planners," Senator Johnson said. "Since that time, decisions have been made which will stretch out our air power mobilization program for an additional year."

"Within the next few months, Congress will be faced with a responsibility of passing upon these decisions. We must determine whether the state of the national security will permit us to cut down even further on plans to expand our air power."

"I do not see how we can meet that responsibility intelligently unless we have before us all the basic facts. The Preparedness Committee plans to get those facts."

Senator Johnson said the investigation will cover the following major points:

1. Aircraft inventory at the time of the Korean War and deliveries of "flyable" aircraft since that date.
2. Aircraft lost through enemy action and aircraft lost through obsolescence since the outbreak of hostilities.
3. United States aircraft production as compared to Soviet aircraft production.
4. Quantity and quality of aircraft now in production and future prospects for production.
5. Operations of the current production program and steps that have been taken to break the bottlenecks outlined in the Thirty-fifth Report.

AF ROTC to Air Univ.

Operation of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps will be transferred to the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., from the Continental Air Command, effective 1 Aug.

The change will consolidate and centralize the control of the program and will make possible more direct supervision of the activities of AFROTC units at the 187 participating institutions.

The transfer will also bring under one command the complementary missions of the Air University and the AFROTC. Both programs are concerned mainly with military education and training of Air Force officers or potential officers. The Air University has professional educators qualified to assist in curriculum development and supervision and has complete technical and professional facilities available for AFROTC use.

Continental Air Command with headquarters at Mitchell AFB, N. Y., will continue to administer activities of Reserve personnel including AFROTC graduates who are commissioned in the USAF Reserve.

University Openings

An additional 21 openings for September classes in civilian universities have been allotted to Air Force officers for postgraduate study leading to an M.A. or Ph.D. in the fields of Bacteriology (7), Biochemistry (13) and Organic Chemistry (1).

Rated and non-rated officers of all grades are eligible to apply for the training.

Application for evaluation of qualifications should be made immediately direct to the USAF Institute of Technology under the provisions of AFR 53-11.

Cautions Against Rows

Presidential Press Secretary Joseph Short said only that the visit was "important" but not "pressing."

It was the first meeting of General Vandenberg and the President following the nomination of the Air Force Chief of Staff for an additional 14 months in that post following the expiration of his four-year tour on 30 April.

Meantime, speculation continues as to what public position General Vandenberg will take when members of Congress question him about the "stretch-out" of the Air Force buildup. General Vandenberg is known to be concerned over delays in attainment of the 143-wing structure approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In his message to the Air Force commanders, General Vandenberg makes it emphatically clear that he—and he alone—will state the Air Force position on this and other matters of admitted controversial nature.

"Leaks" Have Been Obvious

During recent weeks, there have been newspaper stories giving considerable details concerning the advantages and disadvantages of spending money for Naval aviation as compared with Air Force planes. It has been obvious that there have been "leaks" from both Services. General Vandenberg wants this stopped.

Furthermore, with the appointment of General Curtis E. LeMay, Commanding General of the Strategic Air Command, to be Vice Chief of Staff, there has been within the Air Force itself rumors of concern that the "big bomber advocates" might get a disproportionate amount of funds in comparison with funds for tactical and air defense aircraft.

General Vandenberg obviously wants to put an immediate end to this sort of intra-service sharpshooting.

Meantime, evidence of inter-Service disputes on the allocation of defense funds came to light this week during the testimony of Under Secretary of the Air Force Roswell L. Gilpatric before a subcommittee of the Senate's Selection Committee on Small Business.

Mr. Gilpatric is reported to have told the subcommittee that until last fall the Joint Chiefs of Staff had no listing of the relative importance of various weapons. "Actually," he is quoted, "the Joint Chiefs were unable to agree on any system. Finally they just tossed a coin and the Air Force won."

Mr. Gilpatric's Statement

It was reported in the press that Mr. Gilpatric had said a $3.5 billion cut in the plane production program was possible. This brought from the Under Secretary the following statement on 11 March:

"A headline today regarding my testimony yesterday before a subcommittee of the Senate's Select Committee on Small Business stated, '$3.5 Billion cut Held Possible on Plane Production Program.' That statement is not correct and not what I said.

"No cut in the plane production program is possible without jeopardizing the security of the United States.

"In my opinion, it is imperative that Congress at its present session commit the Government positively, in one way or another, to the full amount of the budget requested for procurement of aircraft and other equipment for the Air Force.

"Without such a commitment, orders for badly needed future deliveries cannot be placed and maintained.

"Although part of funds requested would not actually be paid out during the next fiscal year, we cannot obtain production of long lead items without having positive assurance that we will be able to pay for them.

"As I testified yesterday before a subcommittee of the Senate's Select Committee on Small Business, the Air Force is not attempting to tell Congress whether it should make the necessary commitment in its entirety as an actual cash appropriation, or cover part of the commitment by a contract authorization pledging the Government to finance the contracts with future appropriations. "The essential point is that we get a firm 'go ahead' from Congress to carry out the full amount of production contemplated in the budget. That production represents the minimum required to protect the United States."

cedure with reference to all weapons systems.

"As a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, I shall formulate the Air Force position in these various matters after careful study and advice, and shall express these views to my colleagues on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of the Air Force, and to the Secretary of Defense, the President, the Congress and the public as circumstances require. In thus acting, I shall be performing my function as a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in assisting in the formulation of national policy with regard to major military issues.

"These are all matters of serious concern to the nation's security and should be considered deliberately, patiently, factually and unemotionally. Ill-considered or extreme utterances tend to raise justified resentment among the personnel of our sister Services, to becloud the issue, and to turn the matter into a so-called inter-Service row. Anonymous utterances are beneath the dignity of our profession.

"Military policy permits service personnel to discuss any non-classified military matter in public or in private, provided that they do so with an adequate and balanced knowledge of the facts, with due consideration for the views of others, and with dignity and restraint.

"You will take such steps as you consider advisable to insure conformance with the foregoing views. Members of the Air Staff have been similarly advised."

Leadership demands constant achievement

The story behind America's jet trainer

Today's jet fighter pilots receive their in-flight training in Lockheed jet airplanes—the two-place T-33 (USAF) and TO-1 (Navy).

The T-33 is a training version of its famous sister ship, the Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star, and of course incorporates its high-speed, multiple-purpose characteristics.

Newsweek magazine called the F-80 "the workhorse of Korea." It bore the brunt of the Korean air war, flying more combat sorties than all other fighters combined . . . proving its ability to withstand severe battle damage by returning time and again with wings shot up, tail assembly shattered or controls badly damaged.

Experience with the F-80 and the T-33 has helped develop such advanced Lockheed jets as the F-94 All-Weather Fighter, defender of key U.S. cities. Lockheed is the world's leading producer of jet aircraft.

Care of Dependents. Currently under consideration by a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare are two bills to provide Federal aid to the States to make provision for maternity and infant care for families of enlisted members of the Armed Forces. The proposal is opposed by the American Medical Association which says that there is no evidence that the wives and children of enlisted men are not now being cared for by existing facilities and agencies. It is also opposed by the American Hospital Association. The latter group recognizes that there is a problem not only for maternity cases but also "for broken arms and serious illness" of dependents. Its solution, however, is to make Service personnel pay for their own care by authorizing voluntary payroll deductions for participation in cooperative hospital and medical care programs.

Dr. Martha M. Eliot, Chief of the Children's Bureau, quoted to the committee the results of a survey made by the Department of Defense and the Children's Bureau. This survey showed that more than one-third of the men whose wives were pregnant would have to call on relatives or friends or charity to meet the cost while three-fourths were worried about not having enough money to take care of the baby after it came. Dr. Eliot felt that there should be a program for such maternity care and that it should be completely financed by Federal funds as was done during World War II. This would avoid variations between States in their degree of care and attention.

Missing from the discussion thus far has been the important point of the bearing of an effective dependent care program upon the National Defense. Much has been said, and justifiably so, concerning humanitarian considerations, but there has been little mention of the fact that enlisted men—and officers, too—are vitally affected in their military efficiency by worry and concern over the health and welfare of their families. Those sent overseas can not perform their duties effectively if there is uncertainty as to the care of their wives and children. A proper program which assures that every consideration and attention will be given loved ones and that military personnel will not be plagued by financial worries, will help raise morale and efficiency to the highest possible point. There should be no question as to the right of every Service family to be given complete medical, hospital and dental care whenever or wherever they need it.

The House Appropriation Committee this week approved retroactive pay raises for 55,000 ungraded civilian government employees who were included in the general pay raise given civilian employees last October but who were denied the retroactive part of the increase.

Meantime, the House has killed the retroactive feature of the Armed Services' cost of living increase and the Senate committee has cut the amount of the increase virtually in half. The best the Services can hope for is to get a smaller and later increase than Congress gave the civilians.

Single Officers Penalized

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I'm wondering how officials can overlook the glaring, invidious discrimination against the single officer in several matters of policy.

1. Rental allowance is withheld from only the single officer when a delay en route is taken upon change of station.

Quite often this is the only opportunity for the individual to avail himself of his accrued leave, and frequently the entire leave time is spent looking for quarters, furnishing an apartment and getting settled so that one can approach the new assignment with peace of mind.

During the period of "house hunting" the living expenses are higher than ever because rates for hotel rooms or temporary residences are exorbitant, yet only the single officer must forfeit his rental allowance.

2. Another area in which discrimination is directed against the single officer is in the matter of according commissary privileges, regardless of the fact that many of us must live out and buy our own subsistence. Furthermore, this policy is not carried through consistently, for, within the Washington area, some single officers who are not furnished quarters are not granted commissary privileges, whereas it is a known fact that others residing in Post quarters are issued commissary cards.

3. Now the new pay bill is to also penalize the single officer.

If one were to examine which corps or groups are suffering the greatest proportion of these discriminatory acts it could readily be deducted that it is the women's groups which have the largest numbers of single officers. In proportion to their corps size, one can readily guess the ANC, WMSC, and WAC are carrying the brunt of these discriminations.

The ANC and WMSC groups are further grossly discriminated against in the percentage restriction of grade distribution.

For those in positions with authority to remedy some of these situations, I'd ask that we be shown some "do-democracy" instead of only "talk-democracy."

Treatment of Coast Guard

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In the matter of parity with all the other services, one outstanding defect is apparent in regard to the members of the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard has stations in all parts of the country. Sometimes they are manned by only a few men and then again by a large group. The Navy and the Army no matter where they are located take care of the dependents of their members. Although the Coast Guard covers approximately the same global area, we are not in the same position as the other services insofar as medical care is concerned.

The Coast Guard is one of the oldest services in the United States, having been inaugurated 4 Aug. 1790. Yet it is one of the smallest branches of any service. It is therefore of a necessity dependent upon its brother services, and their large installations already established, for the care of dependents of the members.

Up to the present time we are allowed to use the facilities of the U. S. Public Health Service. The Navy just recently through Federal Legislation has authorized the Coast Guard dependents the use of their hospitals. But the Army, through curity has been beyond measure. It has given to history such brilliant military names as Grant and Lee, Pershing, MacArthur, Arnold and Eisenhower, and many hundreds of others. Its graduates have filled the office of President of the United States and President of the Confederate States, as well as State and Federal legislatures, judgeships, and diplomatic posts. The engineers it produced surveyed the routes of the transcontinental railroads and from the beginning have planned and supervised flood control, conservation of water, and the improvement of harbors and inland waterways.

Together with its sister organization, the U. S. Naval Academy, and the forthcoming U. S. Air Force Academy, it is the proud and democratic gateway through which American youths from every walk of life enter upon careers of public service.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—

The Navy Department announced this week that complete command of the American Navy in war operations has been placed in the hands of Admiral Ernest J. King. The War Department also put its new reorganization plan into effect, giving added importance to the Army Air Forces.

50 Years Ago—

The Chief Signal Officer of the Army: "Some time ago we conducted experiments with wireless telephony, but it developed that there was nothing in it. We have, however, been conducting experiments in wireless telegraphy and we now have our own system in operation in San Francisco Bay."

85 Years Ago—

The Secretary of War has decided that retired officers are permitted to accept professorships, and may be detailed for that purpose, but are not on duty in the sense that entitles them to full pay but they can receive pay from the institution.

some technical malfunction, does not allow members of the Coast Guard to bring their dependents to them for medical aid or hospitalization.

It would appear to this member that all the facilities of all the armed forces should be available to all the members of the various services because of the fact that all hands are moved around so that they are not able to take advantage of the facilities of their respective service.

In summation it is felt that if the facilities are available and the command finds it possible the dependents of members of whatever service stationed in the area should be taken care of if necessary.

Disagrees With Writer

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I was pleased with your professional-like reply to the likes and dislikes as expressed in the letter of Mr. Robert Lee Bunting, Jr., in THE JOURNAL for 8 March.

I would like to suggest, if he is not already a member, that he join with those groups who are preparing to dot the landscape with "schools" and even "colleges" to tell us what we are, what we should be, and what is best for us. I dare say, they will not disturb him with any writers, cartoonists or broadcasters to ruffle his peace of mind. There probably will be only the forgetfulness of eternal sleep, induced and perpetuated by citations from the people "one has confidence in," while other brands (of thought and opinion) will find "other outlets for their peculiar ideas."

Press Views: Foreign Aid Program

THE Eastern metropolitan dailies have approved for the most part last week's proposal by the President to increase our mutual security program by $7.9 billion.

Although three New York papers dislike the plan, two other of the cities' most influential papers approve it warmly.

The Daily News opposes the plan because "the dividends thus far realized have consisted chiefly of yells of 'More, more, more' from nations we've tried to buy away from Communist leanings, and fierce abuse from those nations on the rare occasions when more was not forthcoming."

The Journal-American says the President made use of the "fear motive" in his proposal, and that part of his appeal was not "to reason" but was "an attempt to frighten rather than persuade."

The Wall Street Journal merely expressed doubts that "such an expansion of our foreign aid program" would be wise.

Avid endorsement of the plan came from the Times which declared that Mr. Truman "presented the most powerful and persuasive arguments yet made for continuing our military and economic aid to our allies and friends." The Times is "confident that the nation will sustain Mr.

Truman in this analysis."

The Herald-Tribune, also appraised the program in glowing terms. "It will take detailed country-by-country and clause-by-clause analysis," the Tribune said, "to modify or improve what is evidently a thought-out plan to apply a thought-out policy to the actual problems before us."

The Philadelphia Inquirer believes most Americans would support the program if they felt they were getting "MUTUAL security."

In Boston, the Christian Science Monitor is not prepared to say "every penny" asked for "is essential to the preservation of the world," but believes the "American people should... give due weight to the case Mr. Truman has presented."

The Washington Daily News wants to slice the President's figure "a third, or perhaps in half," feeling that it would do little damage "for no real security is promised for next year anyway."

The Washington Post says Congress tacked "silly and unnecessary conditions" onto the program last year with the result that "10 nations, so far, have preferred to do without American help."

The Baltimore Sun says Congress must examine the program "fairly, honestly, and without partisanship."

Discuss NATO Deployments

THE New Hampshire primaries have brought from General Eisenhower no more than the appropriately pleasant comment. Final word on that interesting event in the United States reached him as he and General Alfred M. Gruenther, his Chief of Staff, were on their way to the 3-day conference which General Alphonse-Pierre Juin conducted at Bad Nauheim with senior commanders of all the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in the Central Sector.

The conference had a good deal to discuss in the matter of deploying NATO forces, for it is obvious there must be two considerations—the military benefits and necessities, and the political requirements. Each Treaty nation has been wrestling with home difficulties in recent months and several of them are still uneasy. It is not enough to know that deployment against a possible attack from the east would normally place certain French divisions in Zone A, West German divisions in Zone B, and so on. It is necessary to calculate, too, whether that arrangement is satisfactory to parliamentary strategy in several different capitals. This is one of the numerous areas where General Eisenhower's diplomatic skill has proved invaluable in the past; he has had an opportunity at this week's conference to guide the thinking of his lieutenants on matters which acutely concern civil authorities of all the nations and must have the cognizance of soldiers as well.

The meeting also permitted exchange of views on the prospective summer maneuvers, already charted in preliminary form by Field Marshal Montgomery, whose special responsibility at SHAPE is the "forging of the weapon," as the British veteran likes to describe his training task. The Montgomery plan is understood to call for much more comprehensive maneuvers than any yet held, the final phase involving groups of armies for the first time. It is readily apparent that any such exercise would necessitate determinations, however tentative, on extremely delicate matters—such as the nationality of each army group commander and the national composition of his forces. The military value of the operation (and of the decisions preparatory to it) is not in question; the political wisdom of those decisions at just this time calls for study, and that is what it is getting. There is great curiosity, too, over General Juin's judgment on the main factors of the maneuver problems: last year's exercises, it will be remembered, properly emphasized the art of holding and delaying a far superior force, and while that remains a realistic factor of first importance in 1952 as well, there are new factors which can profitably be present in the coming plan. To be specific, we have somewhat larger forces available for deployment, and we are making rapid progress toward a much more efficient air-deployment than was possible in western Europe a year ago. Last year's tactical air support could not have been maneuvered in highly realistic fashion from bases which admittedly would not be employed in war-time. This year's bases begin to be better; the co-ordinated training which Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad has conducted among the five air forces placed under his command must have appreciably increased their total value to a degree which will be reflected in the planning of the coming combined maneuvers.

Only hasty and unofficial reports are at hand so far on the "Grand Slam" 4-nation maneuver lately conducted by Admiral Robert B. Carney in western Mediterranean waters. The initial critique was held at Naples a week ago, but there should be greater value in detailed discussion (not yet complete) of the progress made and the progress needed by the four fleets in the arts of coordinating fleet operations against air and submarine attack. Perhaps first interest attaches to the performance by the French and Italian elements, for these have had few tests and indeed relatively few opportunities. British and American personnel have been actively cooperating for a decade and have long since standardized necessary

Stand-Pat Reds Block Truce

ALLIED leaders this week frankly voiced their pessimism over the prospect for an early truce in the Korean conflict. In the armistice conference sessions it became painfully evident that the Reds are deliberately prolonging the discussions in order to force further concessions from the United Nations, and also in order to use the conference as a loud speaker to circulate Communist propaganda charges against the Allies. No progress whatever is being made toward an agreement on any of the main issues, and none appears possible so long as the enemy maintains the present intransigent attitude.

Most of the sessions of the conference committees this week were brief. The Reds attempted to keep alive their accusations of Allied mistreatment of Communist prisoners, and of the spreading of disease germs in North Korea by Allied planes. United Nations representatives refused to listen to these absurd charges and walked out on the Reds. However, the discussions are continuing, but there is a growing belief that the truce deadlock may have to be broken by military means. For several months there has been a relative lull in the ground fighting, but with the coming of spring accelerated land operations are probable.

THE MAIN ISSUES STILL IN DISPUTE include Red insistence on Russian participation in truce supervision, the refusal of Communists to accept the principle of voluntary repatriation of prisoners of war and interned civilians, and the demand of the enemy for the right to build military airfields in North Korea during an armistice. The Allies refuse to yield on any of these points.

The claim of the Reds that the Soviet Union is neutral in the Korean conflict was blasted this week by General Matthew B. Ridgway, USA, Supreme Commander of United Nations forces. The general pointed out that Russia is supplying practically all of the principal weapons used by the Red forces in Korea, including M-15 jet aircraft, BA-64 armored cars, SU-76 self-propelled guns, T-34 tanks, field artillery, antiaircraft artillery, trucks, 82mm and 120mm mortars, light and heavy machine guns, submachine guns, hand grenades, mines, rifles, carbines, revolvers and pistols.

General Ridgway said he was unable to predict the outcome of the negotiations. He denounced the known falsehoods of the Red negotiators, which, he declared, were upsetting the truce talks. He said negotiations had reached a point where it is impossible to tell what is going to happen. The general branded Red charges that the Allies are using germ warfare as "completely, absolutely and categorically false." He speculated that the Communist accusations may have been made to cover up their inability to prevent or control epidemics, or they may be an indication that the Reds, themselves, may intend to use germ warfare. There was some evidence this week that the plague epidemic reported to be raging in North Korea may be spreading into Chinese territory in Manchuria. The Peiping radio broadcast information as to steps being taken in that area to combat the disease, and from the urgency of the measures taken there were indications of widespread alarm.

To retaliate for restrictions placed on movements of Allied diplomats in Moscow, the United States, Great Britain, the Netherlands, Belgium, France, Greece and Italy this week sharply curtailed travel of Soviet embassy personnel and Russian newspaper men in these countries. In the United States these Soviet representatives were ordered not to travel more than 25 miles from the center of Washington without giving 48 hours advance notice, making it possible for the State Department to disapprove any such trips. The order also limited personnel of Amtorg, official Russian trade agency, to travel within 25 miles of New York City. Previously similar restrictions had been placed on official representatives of Hungary and Rumania. The State Department indicated that the travel curbs on Red officials would be reconsidered if restrictions on American diplomatic personnel in Russia and satellite states were lifted.

IN AN ALMOST BLOODLESS COUP d'etat General Fulgencia Batista, with the support of the army, this week seized control of the government of Cuba, and assumed dictatorial power over the executive and legislative branches. In the early morning hours of Monday, 10 March, troops directed by Batista, former president and dictator of Cuba, captured the presidential palace and police headquarters in Havana. Two palace guards were killed and became the only casualties in the sudden and highly successful revolt. President Carlos Prío Socarras was given asylum in the Mexican embassy, and later left Cuba to live in exile in Mexico. Other officials fled to the United States and to Latin American countries.

General Batista engineered a similar successful revolt in 1933 and controlled the destiny of Cuba for the next decade. He had announced his candidacy for president at the national election scheduled for next June, but in his role of dictator he has now called off the election. He said that he had learned that President Prío planned to stage a fake revolt and he acted to forestall it. Furthermore, he said the Prío administration was venal and corrupt and had to be overturned in the interest of the people. He promised a national election as soon as practicable.

The Batista revolt took the United States completely by surprise. It apparently was carefully planned and executed with speed and precision. The new Cuban dictator is well known in the United States, where he spent several years during an ebb in his political fortunes. In the period in which he controlled the government as president or dictator, relations between Cuba and the United States were amicable, and there is no reason to anticipate any international tension to develop from the current coup. Batista is regarded as rather conservative and definitely anti-Communist. There are reported to be centers of Red agitation in Cuba, for the dissemination of propaganda in the United States and Latin America. Batista may be expected to wipe out these trouble spots.

THREE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES began hearings this week on the President's request for authority to expend $7.9 billion under the Mutual Security program for aid to friendly foreign countries. The Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees and the Senate Armed Services Committee heard Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Mr. W. Averill Harriman, director of the program, urge the authorization of the full amount requested by the President. The witnesses outlined the need for substantial assistance in funds for military purposes for the countries of the North Atlantic Alliance, for Spain, Yugoslavia, Indo-China, Nationalist China and the American republics. While the administration spokesmen strongly opposed any cuts in the estimates, there appeared to be a disposition on the part of many members of Congress to make substantial reductions in the interest of economy.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

General Counsel May End Legislative Slump—The appointment this week of Roger Kent as General Counsel of the Office of the Secretary of Defense may bring an end to the series of unfortunate delays which have plagued important military personnel bills during recent months.

Mr. Kent, a World War II lieutenant commander in the Navy, has recently served as a member of the Regional Wage Stabilization Enforcement Commission in San Francisco, where he is a member of a prominent law firm. In his new post, he will act as a deputy to Charles A. Coolidge, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Legal and Legislative Affairs. In addition, Mr. Kent will be personal legal advisor to the Secretary of Defense, Deputy Secretary of Defense, Assistant Secretaries of Defense and other key Defense officials.

The post of General Counsel has been vacant since the resignation on 31 Aug. 1951 of Mr. Felix E. Larkin, who had served in the Office of the Secretary of Defense from its inception in 1947. Mr. Larkin helped supervise the Department's legislative program and gained wide recognition for his outstanding handling of complex legislation, including involved personnel measures. He played a key role in the B-36 hearings and the MacArthur hearings and is credited with a vital part in enactment of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Following the departure of Mr. Larkin and the earlier departure of Assistant Secretary of Defense Marx Leva on 1 May 1951, Pentagon action on military personnel legislation deteriorated.

The Reserve Officer Promotion Bill, for example, was promised last summer for transmittal to Capitol Hill by 1 Feb. That deadline arrived and the bill wasn't ready. A 30-day extension was approved, but the supplemental deadline has passed and still there is no bill ready for Committee hearings. Meantime, as reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, planning for such problems as differences in AUS and ORC and AFUS and AFR ranks are hampered because of the delay in sending a long-range Reserve Promotion Bill to Congress.

The blame, of course, cannot be laid exclusively to Department of Defense legislative officials, for they can take no definite action until Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg and her personnel experts complete their studies. Many military personnel feel that the coordination between the personnel and legislative officials of the Department of Defense leaves something to be desired.

In support, they point with concern to the much-discussed Warrant Officer Promotion Bill, promised by Department legislative representatives for introduction by 1 Feb. 1951. After more than a year's delay that bill still is kicking around the Pentagon.

In an election year, Congress will want to wind up business as quickly as possible. Some personnel legislation may not be acted upon in the event plans for an early adjournment are realized. And because this is the second session of a Congress, bills not acted upon at adjournment are dead and must be resubmitted in 1953.

In addition to the Reserve Officer and Warrant Officer Promotion Bills, the Department of Defense was ineffectual in pressing for the Combat Pay Bill, now scuttled following the decision of the Senate Armed Services Committee not to take up the bill "at the present time."

The Combat Pay Bill was proposed by the Army during the summer of 1950, soon after the outbreak of the conflict in Korea when the ground forces were taking the overwhelming proportion of casualties and were fighting, heavily outnumbered, under terrible weather conditions. Many military personnel feel that if the bill had been introduced before that Congress adjourned or had it been advocated more strongly after it finally was introduced in January 1951 that combat pay would have been approved with little difficulty.

Similarly, morale suffered when the Department of Defense delayed in sending a pay raise bill to Congress, long after legislation to provide pay boosts for civilian employees of the Government was submitted. The civilian pay raise was made retroactive to 1 July 1951.

Under the guidance of Assistant Secretary Leva, who was the first General Counsel of the National Military Establishment, and Mr. Larkin, Service legislation affecting personnel was successfully coordinated from initial planning at the Pentagon to final enactment. This has not been the case of late. There is hope, however, that with Mr. Kent's appointment, action will be speedier and more effective.

No More Canned Beer—The Army and Air Force have ordered elimination of the sale of canned beer at exchanges, officers' and noncommissioned officers' messes and at post restaurants to conserve tin. It was directed that bottled beer be used, except in instances where elimination of canned beer would impose a "particular hardship."

Tokyo Nurse Chief Here—Lt. Col. Marie S. Galloway, ANC, who completed a three-year duty tour in Japan last January as chief nurse of the Tokyo Army Hospital, was in Washington last week to confer with Army Nurse Corps officials en route to her new assignment as chief nurse at the U. S. Army Hospital, Ft. Benning, Ga.

Lt. Col. Alice J. Robbe, ANC, chief nurse of the Osaka Army Hospital since August 1949, has been appointed as Colonel Galloway's replacement in Tokyo.

Army Field Forces—The following officers have been assigned to OCAFF, Ft. Monroe, Va.: Col. Thomas D. Gillis, Inspector of Armor Section, and Lt. Col. Wayne G. Higgins, Ordnance Section.

Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, USA, Inspector of Infantry at OCAFF, has left Ft. Monroe, and has been transferred to Percy Jones General Hospital, Battle Creek, Mich., as a patient.

Lt. Col. Leon B. Moye who has been on duty with the Fiscal Section, OCAFF, recently retired and has established residence in Florida.

Burns Expert Studies Frostbite—Dr. Karl Eric Hogeman, noted Swedish surgeon and specialist in the treatment of burns, visited the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine last week to confer with Lt. Col. Robert B. Lewis—about frostbite. Dr. Hogeman says there are common characteristics between injuries from burns and frostbites. Colonel Lewis, head of the Department of Pathology at the school, is world renowned for his work in the treatment of frostbitten flesh.

AF Physical Standards Chief—Col. John A. Schindler, USAF (MC), has assumed duties as Chief of the Physical Standards Division in the Directorate of Professional Services, it is announced by Maj. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, The Surgeon General, USAF. Colonel Schindler is also urological consultant for OSG and was formerly Air Surgeon for the Tactical Air Command.

Colonel Schindler replaces Col. Emmert C. Lentz, USAF (MC), who is now Surgeon, Maxwell AFB, Ala.

League Champ Headed for Marines—The Boston Red Sox' Ted Williams will be assigned to temporary active duty early next month to take a physical examination at Squantum, Mass. If qualified, he will be assigned to the Marine Air Reserve Training Command at Willow Grove, Pa., for an eight weeks flight refresher course before assignment to the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point, N. C., about 12 July.

Four-time winner of the American League batting championship, Williams is believed to be the highest paid performer in baseball.

Wave "Plank Owner" Transferred—The last "plank owner" of the original Fleet Logistic Air Wing Staff, Lt. Mary E. Leighton, will be transferred shortly to a new duty assignment at Treasure Island, San Francisco.

Lieutenant Leighton took over her present duties in December 1948 when the command was still the Fleet Logistic Support Wing located at Moffett Field, Calif. In December of the following year, when the FLAW was established at Patuxent River, she came east with other officers from the decommissioned FLSW Staff. When the Wing was split into two commands, Pacific and Atlantic/Continental, she remained with the latter. She will be succeeded in her assignment by Lt. Comdr. John J. Davis, former Personnel Officer, NAS, Memphis.

Where's He Been and Where's He Going?—The Bureau of Naval Personnel has gone out for security. Official orders issued on 11 March carry the official notification that Rear Adm. Chester C. Wood is being transferred from a current undivided sea duty billet to a new sea duty assignment which was not divulged.

Navy Doctors Certified—Having successfully passed the examinations, three more Naval Medical Officers were recently certified by American Boards. They are: Capt. Clifford F. Storey, American Board of Thoracic Surgery, Naval Hospital, St. Albans, N. Y.; Comdr. John W. Metcalfe, American Board of Orthopedic Surgery, Naval Hospital, FPO San Francisco, Calif.; and Comdr. Walter R. Miller, American Board of Orthopedic Surgery, Naval Hospital, Portsmouth, Va.

Make Long Trip to Fly—Two Naval Air Reservists, twin brothers Ray and Ralph Winchester of Topeka, Kans., face a long trip each month when they prepare for monthly drill with their NARTU squadron at Memphis, Tenn. The brothers drive from Topeka to Little Rock, Ark., and there are airlifted to Memphis for their drill weekend. After the last drill on Sunday afternoon, the airlift returns them to Little Rock, where they begin the 12 to 14-hour drive by car back to Topeka.

The brothers formerly lived in Pine Bluff, Ark., but moved to Topeka over a year ago. Their ties with their squadron mates in Patrol Squadron 791 were so strong that they elected to travel the long distance rather than transfer to another reserve unit nearer their home.

The 1,000 mile round trip each month has the twins traveling a distance each year which is equal to a trip around the world.

U. S. Naval Academy—The Museum recently has received a bust of John Paul Jones (donated by Mrs. H. A. Baldrige, widow of Rear Adm. Baldrige, former director of the museum), a cat-o-nine tails (presented by Capt. Isaiah Olch), an admiral's flag (flown by Admiral Sir Lewis Bayly and presented by Capt. Frederick V. McNair), two pennants (one from Destroyer Division Two, and a piece of the "homeward bound" pennant of the old battleship Wisconsin, also presented by Captain McNair), and the class ring of the late Capt. Samuel W. DuBois, presented by his widow, Mrs. S. W. DuBois of Chevy Chase, Md.

Rear Adm. Benton Weaver Decker, USN-Ret., has presented a painting to the museum commemorating Commo. Mathew C. Perry's 1853 visit to Japan.

Lt. Comdr. Bryan S. Pickett, CEC, Design Superintendent in the Public Works Department, has received orders to report to the Chief of Naval Personnel for duty about 27 March.

Midshipman Second Class Phillip M. Jelley, son of Rear Adm. Joseph F. Jelley, has been elected Editor-in-Chief of the "Trident" for the 1952-53 academic year. Midshipman Second Class Rufus J. Moore was elected Business Manager, according to the announcement by Capt. Charles A. Buchanan, the new Commandant of Midshipmen.

Marine Headquarters Reorganization—A new division and two smaller administrative units have been established at Marine Corps Headquarters under the Commandant's reorganization plan. The larger unit, a Policy Analysis Division, was activated recently. It will be headed by Col. Donald M. Weller, a 1930 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy. Lt. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, Marine Corps Chief of Staff, said the duties of the new Division "will be announced by the Commandant" at a later date.

Other organizational changes included the redesignation of the Security Sub-Section of G-2 as "Counter Intelligence Section, G-2" and the establishment of a Classified Material Control Unit within the Administrative Division. The latter unit will take over responsibilities for the security of classified matter which previously were assigned to the Security Sub-Section.

Sheltons, A Service Family—Maj. George L. Shelton of Ft. Slocum, N. Y., has received orders for transfer to the Far East Command. He is the fourth of five brothers in the service to be assigned to the Far East Command. The others are: Maj. William A. Shelton, jr., Capt. Brown O. Shelton, and Cpl. Harold L. Shelton. Another brother, M/Sgt. Jack Lowell Shelton is Sergeant Major for a replacement company at Camp Chaffee, Ark. Major Shelton's brothers, not on active duty, are: Frederick, a Veteran of World War II and, David, a student at Oklahoma University.

Major Shelton was recently commended by Col. Heath Twichell, Post Commander at Fort Slocum, New York, for his outstanding service in assisting to reopen and rehabilitate the Island military installation in Long Island Sound as the new home of the Armed Forces Information School and the Chaplain School.

THE PILOT NEEDED CAT EYES

Even 20-20 vision could hardly see the dimly lit face of old radar screens! The time lost as the pilot's eyes adjusted themselves from a glaring haze-blanketed sky to a low-illumination radar screen was too long. In aerial combat life or death depend on instant recognition and reaction.

Philco scientists saw the need for better illuminated radar screens... and today, thanks to their research and development, newest radar tubes give forty times more light output than before for easy and unhampered reading.

To accomplish this, Philco engineers and scientists found it necessary to develop new techniques... even new materials... and then new production processes to make the results of their research commercially practical.

Philco is justly proud of this significant contribution to military and industrial electronics. It is another example of the outstanding results achieved by Philco's staff of engineers and scientists in turning scientific research and theory into practical application.

Your Classified Papers are SAFE

If you see both of these on your file

SAFE from Theft

This "Manipulation Proof" combination lock defeats all attempts to open your files, by sound, feel, or reading. It is specified and used by the Federal government to safeguard many top-secret files of irreplaceable papers. With the drill-resisting steel case (standard on Remington Rand Safe-Files) a wall of hardened steel surrounds the heart of the lock when drawers are closed. No unauthorized person gains access to your files.

SAFE from Fire

This seal means that the Safe-File has been certified by the Safe-Cabinet Laboratory to withstand the following hazards: (1) Temperatures up to 1700° F. for at least one hour without damage to paper contents; (2) Will not accumulate explosive gases when exposed for 1/2 hour on all sides to heat up to 2000° F.; (3) Fire-resisting qualities of insulation and metal parts will not deteriorate with age.

Don't take chances on the safety of your invaluable papers and records! And there's no need to take chances. If you keep them in Remington Rand Safe-Files, you have certified protection against fire 24 hours a day at Point-of-Use. And with the "Manipulation Proof" lock on those files, they are safe from any outsider as well. Come in and see these Safe-Files at our Washington office, or write for Folder SC 646A. Address Management Controls Reference Library, Room 1751, 315 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, New York.

5th Army Reunion Pilgrimage

Thousands of veterans of the U. S. Fifth Army are being invited to join a month-long Reunion Pilgrimage this fall to the scenes of their victories in North Africa and Italy, according to an announcement this week from the Fifth Army Association. Any soldier, officer, or civilian who served with the Fifth Army is eligible to participate in the trip.

Sailing from New York aboard a special cruise vessel on 12 Sept., the Reunion Pilgrimage will touch at Casablanca, Oran, Algiers and Palermo before docking at Naples. A northward trek following the Army's battle progress will take the veterans and their families to Italian cities that were involved in the campaign. The Pilgrimage will leave Italy 19 Oct., to return to the U. S.

Special travel and accommodations rates have been arranged and will be announced to those interested in joining the Pilgrimage. Meanwhile, all former Fifth Army personnel who would like to receive detailed information are asked to communicate with the Reunion Committee, Fifth Army Pilgrimage, 38 East 57th Street, New York, N. Y.

Ft. Bliss Housing Project

Work is expected to begin this month on a $9,960,000 troop housing project at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

Plans call for construction of housing and facilities for six battalions in an area in the east part of Ft. Bliss.

First Decade for USAFI

The Armed Forces Institute—the serviceman's correspondence school—observes its 10th anniversary this month.

The Institute, now operating under the Armed Forces Information and Education Division of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, is the successor of the Army Institute, established at Madison, Wisc., on 27 Mar. 1942.

Growth of the Institute, which today offers more than 300 courses, materials comparable to the best available in civilian educational institutions, and general educational developments tests, is well illustrated by its need for six overseas USAFIs. They're located in Alaska, Hawaii, Tokyo, Guam, Europe, and the Caribbean.

The first five USAFI General Educational Development Tests were scored in September 1943. Since then, more than 1,050,000 students have taken USAFI tests. This past January the Institute, in addition to enrolling 1,300 persons in cooperating colleges and universities, enrolled 15,000 servicemen and women in its own courses and provided 17,000 tests. It also processed 28,000 lessons from students and 7,000 reports from schools.

In January 1943, one month before the Army Institute was redesignated the United States Armed Forces Institute, the educational program really began to hit its stride, when 5,000 enrollments were accepted. They were the first of the more than 2,250,000 enrollments USAFI has received to date.

Since 1950, all employees of USAFI, Madison, have been civilians.

CNO Urges Build-Up

Admiral William M. Fechteler, Chief of Naval Operations, asked the House Armed Services Committee this week to approve the Navy's shipbuilding plans for fiscal '53, including a second 60,000-ton carrier and a second atomic submarine.

Although Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball recently disclosed that the Navy will ask for one of the large carriers every year for ten years, Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) said this was not discussed during the committee hearings on Navy shipbuilding.

Admiral Fechteler's testimony was heard in closed session, but it was reported that the estimated cost for the second Forrestal-type carrier would exceed the one now under construction by about 24 million dollars. The carrier now being built has been estimated to cost $185,000,000. The requested sister ship would cost $209 million.

Included in the shipbuilding program which Admiral Fechteler urged Congress to approve are 554 new ships and conversion of 10 old ones. The program will cost more than a billion dollars.

Course Open for Navy

The Navy has announced that a correspondence course of instruction in Economic Mobilization is available at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces to selected officers of the Regular Navy or Naval Reserve on active or inactive duty.

Officers must meet the following eligibility requirements for enrollment in the course: college education or equivalent; rank of lieutenant commander or above (lower ranking officers who are unusually well qualified in other respects may submit their applications for consideration); officers on active duty should possess certain military occupational qualifications allied to the field of economics.

In addition, Reservists on inactive duty should have one or more of the following qualifications: must hold a responsible civilian position in or allied to the field of economics; have a mobilization assignment in a military organization or government agency in or allied to the field of economics; have a baccalaureate degree in the field of economics and have completed the field economic mobilization course.

The course, entitled "Emergency management of the National Economy," is designed to prepare officers for emergency service in command, staff, and planning assignments in the military establishment.

The Navy has evaluated the course at 48 points for Reservists eligible to receive promotion and retirement credit.

U. S. COAST GUARD

PRESIDENT Truman last week described the Coast Guard Cutter Courier, the State Department's Truth Ship, as a vessel which will "be a valiant fighter in the cause of freedom."

"It will carry a precious cargo. And that cargo is truth," the President declared.

Under command of Capt. Oscar Wev, the vessel will be used as a floating broadcasting station to beam radio messages beyond the Iron Curtain.

Captain Wev, speaking with President Truman on a radio broadcast from the Courier in Washington, D. C., on 4 March, said the crew of 10 officers and 80 enlisted men has volunteered for two years' service. The broadcast was beamed around the world by the Voice of America.

Another Ocean Station

The Bureau of the Budget has under study a request that the Coast Guard establish a new ocean weather station in the Pacific, sought by the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Fleet. At the present time, the Coast Guard maintains 5 2/3 weather stations in the Atlantic and 5 in the Pacific.

May Make Film

Republic Studio, which produced the movie, Fighting Coast Guard, has asked for approval to make another film about the Coast Guard.

During recent Congressional testimony, members of a House Appropriations subcommittee indicated they were not pleased with the first Coast Guard film. It was explained that this movie was made hurriedly in order to meet a production schedule. The second Coast Guard film, officials related, is being prepared more carefully.

Strength of Spars

The strength of the Spars is now 210 officers and 102 enlisted women, with six officers and 20 enlisted Spars on active duty.

The Coast Guard has no women's contingent of the Regular service. All Spars are in the Reserve.

Rate French Jet Excellent

Brig. Gen. Albert Boyd, USAF, who has assisted French authorities in evaluating the Dassault MD452 "Mystere," reports that the French-designed jet fighter is an excellent aircraft.

General Boyd, Vice Commanding General of the Wright Air Development Center at Dayton, Ohio, said the American fliers' test of the "Mystere" did not include simulated combat and that no attempt was made to test the relative maneuverability of the "Mystere" and the Air Force's F-86 Sabre jet.

Two F-86A Sabre jets were used in the tests at Marignane, France, to check the accuracy of the air speed system of the MD452 and to observe the French aircraft in flight. General Boyd and Major Yeager took turns flying the MD452 while one or both of the F-86As served as pacer and observer planes. In addition to checking the air speed system of the MD452, the F-86As enabled the observers to check vibration, operation of control surfaces, and aerodynamic stability of the "Mystere" and to detect any difficulties which the pilot could not observe from the test plane's cockpit. Use of escort planes is standard practice in test flights of prototype aircraft to insure safety of the test pilot and to give him every possible assistance.

General Boyd said that he and Major Yeager were both convinced that the "Mystere" is an excellent interceptor and that both recommended its production to the Chief of Staff of the French Air Force.

RAF to Expand

The Royal Air Force by next year will be the largest of Britain's three armed services, according to the British Information Services. Manpower will be increased to 297,000 by April 1953—a 20 per cent increase over the present figure. "Front-line" fighter and bomber strength will be stepped up.

The RAF is slated to get the largest increase in defense expenditure for the coming year. Britain, which will spend the equivalent of $3.8 billion on defense during the coming year, will make the biggest increase in air strength in tactical air units for Western European defense. The Second Tactical Air Force in Europe is to include squadrons equipped with the new Venom jet fighter.

Test Robot Planes "Down Under"

At the $54,000,000 proving ground near Woomera, Australia, a prototype pilotless plane is being tested. It is a sleek, streamlined machine with short 20 ft. stub wings. During take-off, a 3-wheel trolley is used, which is automatically jettisoned the instant the plane becomes airborne.

The "robot" is powered by a midget jet engine manufactured in Britain by the Armstrong-Siddeley firm. The turbojet, known as the "Adder," weighs 550 lbs. and is 29 inches in diameter. It is a pure jet version of the Armstrong-Siddeley "Mamba" turbo-prop engine and is said to have given a completely satisfactory performance at various speeds and heights up to 20,000 ft.

equipment and techniques to a marked degree. The other two fleets have had limited opportunity to learn our techniques, and it is gratifying that in the past year they have made enough progress in this respect to justify participation in this grand-scale exercise. The problems were chiefly those related to protection of a convoy exposed to air and submarine attacks. This involved anti-aircraft procedure and antisubmarine techniques, both defensive and aggressive, which means that familiarity with both theory and practice of communications was of prime importance; one must assume that a great deal of industry is necessary to inculcate in two relatively new allies the knowledge which the two old allies learned in the hard way—which is also the effective way. The prolonged operation at sea called for refueling, and this in turn for standard refueling equipment, down to such "minor" matters as standard threads for the nozzles. The "minor" matters would be revealed quickly enough in the exercise; the less obvious matters probably were revealed, too, but not quite so quickly, and there is a good deal of curiosity about just what the critiques will uncover.

France's new Right-Center cabinet, as hammered together by Premier Antoine Pinay, won its first vote by 290-101 in the National Assembly last Tuesday. The figure looks impressive, but it is partly due to the fact that two of the three opposition parties (Socialists and Gaullists) did not vote at all; actually, M. Pinay's total vote was less than half of the total membership of parliament. The Socialists wish to know more about M. Pinay's economic program; the Gaullists oppose the retention in the cabinet of Robert Schuman—a position which is less to the discredit of M. Schuman than to that of the Gaullists. But with those two large groups on a merely neutral basis, it is apparent that M. Pinay's new government does not have a life-expectancy which would command great enthusiasm among political actuates.

The political and military experts who have been drafting the European Army compact which they hope will meet the approval of the six nations involved have about six weeks' existence ahead, for they are committed to finishing their draft by 1 May. There are still several points of anxiety, including (as mentioned above) the means of determining how the 43 projected divisions and the 6,000 projected planes will be deployed, and also the basic structure of the West German contribution. The experts meet in Paris, with SHAPE representatives present and SHAPE continuously informed of progress and of barriers to progress. They have a long way to go, but they have covered a great deal of ground already, and the prospect of full agreement at this level before the end of April is not at all dark; the need will then be for acceptance by the six nations themselves.

The former Commanding General of the Eastern Army Anti-Aircraft Command with Headquarters at Stewart AFB, N. Y., was greeted at Rhine Main Air Base by the Deputy EUCOM Inspector General, Col. W. R. Watson, who accompanied him to EUCOM Headquarters in Heidelberg.

The new Inspector General succeeds Maj. Gen. W. W. Eagles, USA, who was named EUCOM Director of Military Post, replacing Maj. Gen. Charles D. Canham, USA, who has returned to the United States to take command of the 82d Airborne Division.

Reception hour will be from four until six at the General's quarters on the Post's Main Drive. Individual invitations have been extended to approximately 250 anticipated guests. This is another in a series of such receptions for newly arrived personnel inaugurated by General and Mrs. Streit upon the General's assumption of command at Walter Reed early in 1949.

A tea celebrating the tenth anniversary of the inception of the Junior Army, Navy Guild Organization, better known as the JANGO, will be held on Monday, 31 Mar., from 3 to 5 P. M., at the Ft. Lesley J. McNair home of Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, wife of the Army Chief of Staff. The occasion will honor the founders of JANGO, Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, the late Mrs. Ralph A. Bard, Mrs. George Marshall, Mrs. Harold R. Stark, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. McCook Knox, and Mrs. William Smedberg, Jr., together with the past presidents of the organization. Mrs. Gale E. Griggs is chairman of the Tenth Anniversary Celebration and assisting her are the Mesdames Fred R. Miller, J. Robert Ryan, George W. Hinman, C. H. DuVal, V. R. Roanne, L. G. Clarke, Jr., James H. Mangan, Sherman A. Smith, Stephen Archer and A. K. Baurret.

Ten years ago Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the then Secretary of the Army, and the late Mrs. Ralph A. Bard, wife of the Secretary of the Navy at that time, conceived the idea of forming an organization composed of daughters, granddaughters, wives, mothers and sisters of officers, active, reserve and retired, of civilian employees of the Department of Defense appointed by the President and women officers of the Armed Forces.

The purpose was then and is now to encourage patriotic activities and assistance to worthwhile civic charitable organizations. JANGO participation in such causes includes courses conducted for Junior Jangos in Nurses' Aide Training, assistance given to the National Symphony, the Soldiers', Sailors', Marines' and Airmen's Club, the House of Mercy, the Belasco USO, the Red Cross, the Washington Council of Church Women, the Home of Incurables, the Salvation Army and many other worthy endeavors. The Jangos operate a Thrift Shop at 916 17th St., N.W., which is the organization's main source of income. A Foreign Hospitality Committee, recently organized, through which members entertain foreign guests of the Government, has proved opportune as a means of furthering understanding of the problems and customs of different nationalities.

All details for the annual Air Force Fair scheduled to open at Bolling AFB at 3 P.M. on Saturday, 5 April have been completed. A colorful ceremony will highlight the opening of the gates to the Fair in Hangar No. 1 when Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenburg, wife of the USAF Chief of Staff, will cut ribbons to admit the first comers. Opening of the gates will be the signal for the beginning of seven hours of fun packed excitement for the thousands of civilians and service members who will attend.

The nearly 1000 members of the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club of Washington, D. C., sponsors of this event, have been busy since the turn of the year collecting, sewing, and finishing carloads of articles to be sold at the Fair. Dozens of committees have been hard at work buttoning up every detail of each part of the undertaking to insure a memorable event for all who attend.

All the funds realized by the Flyers' wives are used in aid and welfare work in the interests of Air Force personnel and in providing hospitals and service clubs with equipment such as television sets, radios, phonographs, furniture and draperies. In addition to providing needed funds for welfare work, the Fair affords an excellent opportunity for the general public to visit Bolling AFB and meet and mingle with their many service friends and join in happy carefree entertainment.

The 1952 Fair will present all the earmarks of the old fashioned country fair. A real midway with all the specialty booths plus the many games of chance and skill will spell out the theme and atmosphere of the fairs of olden days. A special effort has been made to provide for the children and innumerable attractions are being prepared to hold their attention throughout the Fair.

The excitement of the day will not subside until after a gigantic auction is staged late in the evening with an old-fashioned auctioneer pushing the wares. The name of the celebrity who will do the bid calling will be announced later.

Typical of the many attractions are: The Bargain Bar. This mecca for the thrifty minded will have for sale used articles, including children's clothing and furniture, glassware, china, lamps and lamp shades, pictures, pots and pans, sport equipment, linens, electrical appliances, bric-a-brac and many other household items.

The Cook's Corner will feature pieces de resistance in all varieties of delicious home-made specialties to take home for later consumption while THE CANTINE will take care of current on-the-scene hunger.

The Fleedgling's Midway will amaze the children with a variety of entertainment. Among these will be pony rides, a shooting gallery, a fish pond, darts, ring tossing, bean bag games and full one-half hour cartoon movie show which will also incidentally afford the tired mothers a chance to rest.

The Dolls and Toys Booth will fulfill all Easter needs. This booth will offer new items that include, Easter bunnies and toys, children's clothing, dolls and dolls' clothing, and also a variety of stuffed animals.

The GAMES for adults will afford chances to let off a lot of steam as skill is applied at the many unusual and fascinating games which will challenge both minds and muscle.

Flying Needles—Fashion and needlecraft will delight all women with their selection of hats, dirndl skirts and matching stoles, argyle socks, aprons, guest towels, lingerie case and many other articles which the Air Force Officers' Wives' have been making through the long winter days in their homes.

The TIE Booth will have a large selection of "cravats" for sale while the INSIGNIA booth will take care of the service men's needs for bars and stars to U. S. pins, Pilot's, Observers', Navigators' and Bombardiers' Wings. Old unit insignia and shoulder patches can be had here for the young collectors.

YE OLDE BOOK SHOPPE will give you a chance to pick up that book you've always meant to get, such as whodunit mysteries, comics, fiction and non-fiction.

At the PLATTER PANTRY you can

■ FT. KNOX, KY. Seven years ago a Fort Knox colonel stood in a Japanese prisoner of war camp and watched misty-eyed as the rising sun was struck from the flagstaff and Old Glory went up in its place. Although crudely fashioned from parachute cloth, the flag stood for an important moment. It was the first flag to fly over Japan after that country's surrender.

This week Colonel Ralph T. Artman, chief of the urology section of the U. S. Army Hospital at Fort Knox, once again held in his hands that same historic flag. A flag that will soon be on its way to a Washington museum collection.

Over the years—between the prison camp days and now—Colonel Artman often wondered what had become of the feverishly-made flag. His questions were answered four months ago in an unexpected letter from one of his fellow war prisoners. An Eau Claire, Wis., police officer wrote the colonel that he had the flag.

Ex-Sgt. Clifford Omtvedt related how he was one of the three men who raised the flag on that colorful morning and had carried it at the head of the column as the liberated men marched out forever. Now, said Sergeant Omtvedt, he wanted to share the flag with his countrymen. He wanted The Armored Center's Colonel Artman, who had been the only U. S. officer in the prison camp, to come to Eau Claire to accept the flag for the Army.

An honor guard of Marines who participated in the evacuation will serve as an honor guard for the ceremonies.

Three members of the Second Marine Air Wing flew from the MCAS here for the activities. Capt. Joseph Burns, a native of Gloversville, Second Lieut. Morgan M. Peterson, and CWO John J. Wives Who Have Traveled to Far East Give Tips to Those About to Embark Going to the Far East? If so, you may be interested in reading some of the "do's" and "don'ts" prescribed by those who have made the trip before you.

The Armed Forces Hostess Association, located in Room 1B877, The Pentagon, Washington, D. C., has files on almost every base in the Far East Command. If you would like to do some advance planning, the files are available for your use. In addition, the Association may be able to furnish you with the name of an "Overseas Hostess" who will give you even more complete information on the specific locale for which you are slated. The JOURNAL wishes to emphasize that none of the publications are available on a mail-out basis, but may be used in the Hostess' office only.

Two ports of embarkation serve the Far East Command—Seattle and San Francisco—and each has an official pamphlet which is published for the information of dependents. These pamphlets, and a third one prepared by General Headquarters of the Far East Command, are available for leisurely perusal in the Hostess' office. The limited supply available to the Association makes it impossible to mail them out. They will, however, be forwarded to dependents through official sources with travel orders, in sufficient time to be digested prior to port call and sailing date.

Typical of the more personal reports on file in the office is one prepared by a group of service wives who traveled to Japan aboard the U. S. Army transport General A. W. Brewster. The observations and suggestions of these women were recorded in a report by Mrs. Harry Doil, wife of Lt. Col. Doil, MSC, and Mrs. Richard White, wife of Major White, USAF, for the use of the Hostess group. The report is printed herewith in its entirety (except for some editing necessitated by space limitations):

Preparing For the Voyage

The Port Call will designate the time and place to report. Further arrangements or reservations on your part for housing accommodations while at the port are not necessary.

Buy the largest traveling cases, suitcases, or hand luggage suitable to your needs. Each passenger is allowed two, and you will receive assistance in transporting and carrying them aboard.

Perma starch your starchable clothes before you start your trip and thereby avoid starching en route. Clothes soil easily aboard ship, especially light colors. Therefore, send your nicest clothes in your hold baggage. Most women wear suits for embarkation and debarkation, and carry a top coat. Both Seattle and San Francisco are always "suit weather" cities. Adjustment for the season, however, may be made if desirable.

The Voyage

A MUST—Be sure to unpack and arrange your clothing shortly after embarking, while still at the dock or in the harbor. After you leave the harbor the going usually gets rough and unpacking is extremely unpleasant. Also, to avoid sea-sickness, you should be on the deck, mid-ship as much as possible during this early rough period.

Be prepared for very little privacy. Usually four passengers to a cabin with a shared bathroom between two cabins. Wash basins in each cabin. Accommodations may vary with the type of transport.

Automatic washers are provided aboard ship in a passenger laundry, as are ironing boards and hand irons. A sign-up list is maintained for both. It may be more convenient to have your own traveling iron.

ANOTHER MUST—Bring a large knitting bag or similar "all-purpose" hand bag. It is wonderful to carry last minute items aboard ship and to carry items around ship, as magazines, knitting, Kleenex, lotions, children's items, etc.

Bring some lasting toys for the children for their "quiet hours" and for periods of inclement weather when they might be confined to cabins. Some books and games are available but it is advisable to bring your own to keep your children occupied and happy. Children get a pent-up feeling a few days out.

REMEMBER—You are responsible for the supervision, care and feeding of your children at all times. You should arrange early with a friend, cabin mate or neighbor for the "exchange" care of children in the event of indisposition.

Be prepared to deposit approximately $2.00 per adult (over six years of age) and $1.00 per child for each day of the voyage to cover costs of meals, etc., aboard. Estimate 15 days. Traveler's checks are acceptable aboard ship and may be cashed. Personal checks are not.

Clothing Suggestions

Change to slacks, jeans or similar attire as soon as possible after embarking. Such clothes avoid embarrassment on wind swept decks and ladderways. Shorts are normally prohibited.

Attire during the day is normally slacks, jeans, culottes, with blouse or sweater and flat soled shoes (crepe soled, dark preferable). Evening meals require skirt or dress.

Bring several head scarfs. It is required that you have some sort of head covering for boat drills. In the winter months bring a heavy coat that can take a terrific beating. Remember, not your best coat. Avoid "frilly" clothes. Stockings are seldom worn.

Suggested clothing: For each child—three pairs of jeans or overalls with T shirts, seersucker or nylon blouses; For yourself—a robe, nylon lingerie (three sets), two dark skirts, slacks, jeans, culottes or pedal pushes, two nylon or cotton blouses, sweaters, shoulder strap bag or purse, hair nets, tennis or golf hat with sun visor (or a pair of good sun glasses).

All clothes should be dark, serviceable, and preferably washable. Facilities for dry cleaning do not exist. A bottle of cleaner (NOT the inflammable type) will be handy for removing spots.

That's the information for the trip. Next week THE JOURNAL will tell you what to expect after your arrival in the Far East, as gleaned from reports of the Association's "Overseas Hostesses."

Carolina, made a response to the General's speech.

Colonel Bule has announced that Col. Thos. M. Mayfield has been selected to organize and command the 108th Infantry Division. Organized Reserve Corps. Selected as Colonel Mayfield's Chief of Staff is Lt. Col. Jas. Y. Rogers, also of Charlotte. The 108th Infantry Division, one of the 25 Army Reserve Divisions which will become a part of later forces of the ready reserve, is composed of units of North and South Carolina.

Gen. C. D. Palmer, USA, artillery inspector, OCAFF. The Koreans are one of three such groups studying at U. S. Army schools in this country. Ten interpreters preceded them here to translate field manuals and other texts into their native language.

Capt. Maurice L. Clouser has been liaison officer for the group. He accompanied them here and will return to Korea with them. He is a member of the Korean Military Advisory Group.

Silver Star medals were presented recently to widows of two soldiers killed in Korea by Maj. Gen. A. M. Harper, USA, commanding general, in a brief ceremony here. Mrs. Donnie L. Bias, widow of Sfc. Donnie L. Bias, is employed in the AG section at Sill. Her husband was a member of Company G, 7th Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division, when he was killed while crossing the Nakdong river on a patrol.

The other medal went to the widow of Cpl. Lindie E. Patterson, Cordell, Okla. He was with Battery C, 21st AAAW Battalion, when he was killed during an attack last April.

Mrs. Bias recently received another honor—Girl of the Year—for her extensive participation in USO work in nearby Lawton, Okla.

Colonel Graves retired in 1921 after World War I service as assistant to the Chief Engineer of the AEF. He was recalled to active duty in 1927 as a member of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors. In 1928 he was appointed a member of the Mississippi River Commission, and has served continuously since then on that body.

As a West Point cadet, Colonel Graves was a member of the Army football team and was named All-American tackle by Walter Camp in 1904. He was coach of the Military Academy football teams in 1915, 1916, 1919, 1920 and 1921.

Colonel and Mrs. Graves reside at 2901-16th Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. Their son, Maj. Ernest Graves, Jr., is now serving on General Eisenhower's staff in Europe.

NEED AIR ENGINEERS

Stretch-outs in aircraft production have not lessened the industry's critical need for engineers, technicians, skilled craftsmen.

Eight Air Medals at Once

Lt. Joseph L. Bowler, Army aviator holding the official record for all services in the number of wounded evacuated by helicopter in Korea, recently was awarded eight clusters to the Air Medal during ceremonies held at his new station, the Medical Field Service School, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Also winner of the Distinguished Flying Cross, Lieutenant Bowler returned to the States last Thanksgiving Day after a year in Korea where he flew 487 missions and evacuated 806 casualties. He also devised a means of giving blood plasma in flight.

Lieutenant Bowler was an Air Force glider pilot, with two years' service in Europe, before his transfer to the Army in 1947. He received his helicopter training the year before the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

At the Medical Field Service School he is assigned as an instructor in air evacuation.

Another Decorated Army Pilot

First Lt. Warren H. Sadler, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross with five oak leaf clusters, has been assigned to the 11th Airborne Division's Artillery at Ft. Campbell, Ky., as pilot of a light observation plane. Following a year's service as an aviator in Korea with the 159th Field Artillery Battalion of the 25th Division, he returned to Ft. Sill, Okla., from where he was assigned to the 11th Airborne Division.

In addition to the Distinguished Flying Cross with five oak leaf clusters, Lieutenant Sadler wears the Air Medal and 29 oak leaf clusters.

Lieutenant Sadler is married to the former Miss Freddie McFarland of Dallas, Texas. Their permanent home address is at 4722 Reiger Ave., Dallas, Tex., but they now live at 404 Braden St., Hopkinsville, Ky.

First Postwar CE OCS

Thirty-four former enlisted men out of an original enrollment of 60 received commissions as second lieutenants in the Corps of Engineers at Ft. Belvoir, Va., on 11 March in graduation exercises of the first postwar class of the 22-week Engineer Officer Candidate School.

These initial postwar OCS graduates are the first of 1,600 young men who are expected to travel the popular wartime route to commissions during the first year of operation.

The Engineer OCS was closed in 1946, after producing more than 25,000 wartime officers, many of whom were recalled for the current emergency. It was reopened last September with 60 candidates. Current OCS graduates will partially fill the ranks which will be left vacant this spring by release of involuntarily recalled OCS "alumni."

The postwar edition of the Engineer OCS is five weeks longer and more comprehensive than its wartime predecessor. Two short courses which were not offered in the wartime OCS are atomic warfare and airborne operations. Most of the newly-commissioned second lieutenants will receive assignments as combat platoon leaders.

Pa. District Adjutant

Col. E. M. Sutherland, Chief, Pennsylvania Military District, has announced the appointment of Lt. Col. John F. Beck, as District Adjutant with headquarters at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation. Colonel Beck succeeds Lt. Col. John A. Lasky, who has been assigned to the European Command.

In July 1950 Colonel Beck was appointed Deputy Chief of Staff, Southwestern Command, Japan Logistical Command, a job he held until returning to the United States in December 1951. He has been on duty with Headquarters Pennsylvania Military District since 12 Jan.

Colonel Beck's wife, Mrs. Margaret C. Beck, and their two children, John F. Beck, and Karen Ann, live at 1257 Circle Drive, Arbutus, Baltimore, Md.

Conserve Army Material

The substitution of steel in small arms ammunition alone is expected to save more than 5,000,000 pounds of copper during the present quarter, the Department of the Army reported this week.

Actual conservation of copper during the previous quarter in the production of small arms ammunition amounted to 3,675,587 pounds.

The Army cited this example as one of the results of an intensive campaign to eliminate or reduce the use of critical materials without sacrificing essential military or safety features.

Specifications for guns, incendiary bombs, belt fasteners, medical service items, weapon mounts, radio sets, hospital beds and even harbor tugs, in addition to scores of other items, have all undergone changes which conserve materials in short supply.

Artillery ammunition cartridges, for an example, are now made of steel instead of brass, with the exception of the 120-mm. size. Meanwhile, improved methods of producing fuses, boosters and rotating bands in artillery shells promise to further reduce copper requirements in this field, it was said.

Savings in the production of small arms ammunition stemmed from the use of a clad steel jacket, formerly made of a copper-zinc alloy.

Copper has also been eliminated from many small items of "hardware" such as snaps, springs, buckles and locks, with plated steel replacing the copper.

The Army has also adopted boron and lean alloy steel in the manufacture of guns, gun mounts and tank and truck parts, since these types of steel can, in some cases, replace alloy steel which contains larger amounts of critical nickel.

Total results are expected to produce the following savings during the second and third quarters of fiscal year 1952 (1 Oct. 1951 to 1 Apr. 1952):

Battlefield Salvage

Reclamation of $2,000,000 worth of critically-needed cable and wire from mountainous and mined battlefields in Korea has earned the 4th Signal Battalion a commendation from General James A. Van Fleet, Commanding General of the Eighth U. S. Army.

More than $1,000,000 worth of long-range cable has been recovered and made available again for Signal Corps operations, and another $1,000,000 saving already has been made in the recovery of 17,627 miles of field wire used for telephone, telegraph and teletype lines. Some has been restored locally and put back into immediate use. The remainder has gone to Japan for rehabilitation or salvage.

Buck after initially entering action with the 27th, Miss Jacque has been flown on 364 combat missions by 131 different pilots, delivered 4,000 bombs on enemy targets, been shot up nine times by enemy fire—and yet has always managed to return to base.

The Navy Bureau of Aeronautics has announced the completion of initial tests on a new and more powerful jet engine to power its latest fighter aircraft.

The engine is an advanced version of the J-48 Turbo-Wasp built by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft. The new J-48 passed its pre-flight tests and is scheduled for immediate flight test. It will be in production this fall.

The Navy said, "This latest version of the J-48 uses a new, heat-resistant alloy which contributes materially to increased performance and saves substantially on critical metals now in short supply. The engine delivers a great deal more thrust than the previous J-48 model which is rated at 6250 pounds static thrust. Further development of this engine to even higher power ratings is anticipated."

$3 Billion a Month

During the first seven months of fiscal year 1952 (July 1951-January 1952), the Department of Defense obligated $21.3 billion for the procurement of major equipment, supplies, military construction and expansion of production facilities. Of this, the Army obligated $6.4 billion, the Navy $6.4 billion, and the Air Force $8.5 billion.

These obligations reflect orders placed during the seven-month period and include both contracts with private industry and project orders placed with Department of Defense industrial establishments such as shipyards and arsenals.

Obligations for procurement of "hard goods" (aircraft, ships, tanks, weapons, ammunition, production equipment, electronics and other equipment) amounted to $17.7 billion, with "soft goods" procurement obligations (clothing, subsistence, and petroleum) aggregating $2.5 billion and construction $1.1 billion. Procurement for the Mutual Security Assistance Program accounts for $0.8 billion of the $17.7 billion obligated for "hard goods."

Total Department of Defense obligations for the seven months, including military pay and allowances, research and development, and other activities, as well as procurement and construction funds, were approximately $31.3 billion.

C-119 Packets to RCAF

Delivery to Canada from the United States of the first Fairchild C-119 Military Packet for the RCAF is expected in April. Plans to purchase the aircraft for the RCAF were made public shortly before the end of 1951.

The RCAF will use the aircraft for general transport work and for para-troop training and operations.

Dedicate Jet Center

The jet engine center which the General Electric Company is constructing at Lockland, Ohio, will be dedicated 18, 19 March in commemoration of "the fastest 10 years in aviation history," C. W. LaPierre, general manager of the G-E Aircraft Gas Turbine Division, has announced.

Top military and defense production officials and leaders of the aviation industry, state and local governments will be invited to participate in the observance which will begin on the 10th birthday of the nation's first jet engine.

"It was only 10 years ago, 18 March 1942, that America's first turbojet was completed and placed on test at our Lynn, Mass., plant," Mr. LaPierre said. "At that time we knew very little about this new form of aircraft propulsion. The few people working on the then top secret engine occupied only a small corner of the Lynn Works."

Modest Beginning

"From this modest beginning, with the Air Force and the Navy providing the impetus, has come the turbojet engine industry which has the responsibility for providing airframe builders with the finest power plants that American ingenuity and know-how can devise."

"To emphasize not only the growth of the industry but also our progress in development in the decade, we feel it is appropriate to dedicate our large turbojet research, development and production center here on the anniversary of the running of the first engine," Mr. LaPierre said.

"The center will be dedicated to the task of maintaining American leadership in the field of turbojet and turbo-propeller power plants."

General Electric also has announced the expansion of its aviation equipment business to include a new operation for the design, manufacture, and sale of turbine-driven accessories for jet engines and aircraft.

Current Projects

Included among the products which are now being produced or developed by the Accessory Turbine business are turbo-superchargers and impellers, jet engine starters, turbine-driven fuel pumps, and air-turbine drives for alternators and hydraulic pumps. Headquarters for commercial, engineering, and manufacturing activities are at the company's River Works Plant, Lynn, Mass.

Announcement of the appointment of J. P. Turner, jr., as head of the new business, designated Accessory Turbine, was made by L. T. Callahan, manager of the Aircraft Gas Turbine Division's Lynn Operation.

During World War II, Mr. Turner served as Lt. Commander in the U. S. Navy and saw service in both the Atlantic and Pacific. In his last assignment, he commanded the USS Crownblock, an aviation gas tanker attached to the 3d Fleet.

test, and evaluate aviation fire control systems, aircraft guns and associated components, short-range guided missiles, and aircraft missile launchers; perform countermeasures tests and investigations of electronic and infrared guidance systems."

"Bullseye" Target

Integral with command of the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station, which is under management control of the Bureau of Ordnance, is the air station which is under control of the Bureau of Aeronautics and has the mission of providing support for the research, development, testing, and evaluation carried on at the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station, and also providing support for assigned fleet units. Of interest are the available ranges at the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station, the most important being Wallops Island, and a ship target known as "Bullseye." The Wallops Island Range is both an impact area and missile launching site instrumented with rakes, theodolites, fire control directors, radars, and telemetering receiving equipment which provide data for complete flight path information and missile performance data.

Also located on Wallops Island is the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Pilotless Aircraft Research Station which is engaged in research work for the purpose of exploring aerodynamic phenomena in the supersonic region.

The "Bullseye" target is a grounded liberty ship located about three miles southwest of Tangier Island in the Chesapeake Bay. Photographic instrumentation, both on the ship and on stands surrounding the target make it ideal for radar and other seeking-type missiles. In addition to these ranges, the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station is able to provide coverage of exercises and tests in the operating area offshore with various photographic aircraft and airborne telemetering units. This effectively allows use of operational targets and the extensive area at sea. By using its own ranges and the offshore areas, the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station is able to test aviation ordnance equipment under various conditions from initial evaluation to final service development.

Visiting Personnel

The Test Station plays host to a number of Bureau of Ordnance contractors who are actively engaged in the fields of guided missiles and aircraft fire control. Among the visiting persons frequently seen here are representatives from the National Bureau of Standards, Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation, Eastman Kodak Company, Farrand Optical Company, and Specialties, Inc. Engineers from these organizations act as test directors on some projects assigned for evaluation or as advisors on other projects.

Although the station is an isolated one because of its mission, the life here is definitely not monotonous or uninteresting. There is plenty of social activity for those who enjoy "indoor sports," and for the outdoor man, the boating, fishing, and hunting are beyond compare. Chincoteague is famous as a sportsman's paradise.

With the recent increased activity in the fields of both guided missiles and aviation ordnance, the future looks bright for the Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station and its companion activity, the Naval Auxiliary Air Station. The airfield runways are being lengthened to better facilitate the handling of jet-type aircraft; new machine gun test facilities are contemplated; additional bombing ranges are under discussion; work is being done to improve the guided missile test range; and over 300 housing units are planned in order to accommodate the increased number of officers, enlisted personnel, and civilians who will be required in order to operate and maintain the new facilities. All of these things will increase the station's effectiveness and ability to contribute to the current national defense effort.

EARNINGS IN AIR INDUSTRY

Average weekly earnings in the aircraft industry are $12.87 above average for all manufacturing industries.

crease" in the number of requests from wives for assistance in arranging and paying for maternity care and children's medical care. The Red Cross estimates that about 110,000 requests for help in obtaining maternity care will be received from families of service men over a year's period. Under its financial assistance policy for meeting emergency needs, approximately 10,000 of these families will be helped in paying for care. On the same basis, the Red Cross will also receive approximately 60,000 requests a year for help in obtaining medical care for children under 18, with financial assistance being given to about 12,000, Dr. Eliot related.
